Boy, 12, Hangs Himself

HAYTI — Ronald Blanton, 12, of Hayti Route Two was discovered by his parents Friday about 10 p.m. hanging by his neck from a tree in the front yard of the family home.

He was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Jimmy Osburn, county coroner, ruled the child died of a broken neck due to accidental hanging.

He was born April 25, 1960 at Corning, Ark., to Sherman Blanton, now of Knobel, Ark., and Barbara Lowe, now of Hayti Route Two.

He is survived by his parents and stepfather, Donald Dean Lowe of Hayti Route Two; two brothers, Lonnie and Randy Blanton, both of Hayti Route Two; five sisters, Karen, Debra, Glenda, Sharon and Tonya, all of Hayti Route Two; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Edna Thomas of McDougal, Ark., and his maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Preston of Corning.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in Jimmy Osburn Funeral Home with Edmond Cagle, minister of the Church of Christ, officiating.

Burial will follow in McDougal Cemetery.

Democrats Name First Woman Party Chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Democratic national chairman is Jean Miles Westwood, a 48-year-old grandmother from West Jordan, Utah, and the first woman to head a major political party.

Mrs. Westwood, a principal adviser to Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern, replaces Lawrence F. O'Brien. Sen. McGovern's selection of Mrs. Westwood was unanimously ratified by the Democratic National Committee Friday in Miami Beach, Fla.

The committee, in another precedent-setting move, selected Basil Paterson of Harlem, N.Y., as vice chairman. Paterson, 45, a former state senator, is the first black to be picked for such a top post in a national party.

McGovern's choice for the vice-chairmanship was Pierre Salinger, a campaign adviser and former White House press secretary, who withdrew from contention after black Democrats from Mississippi nominated Paterson.

While originally endorsing Salinger, McGovern said after Paterson was nominated that either man would be acceptable to him.

O'Brien, who held the chairmanship for 2 1/2 years, had led the presidential campaigns of Lyndon B Johnson in 1964 and Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968. He was postmaster general under Johnson after being in charge of congressional liaison during the John F. Kennedy administration.

McGovern said he tried to persuade O'Brien to remain on the job but that O'Brien refused because of personal reasons. "I respect his wishes," McGovern said, "I regret it but I respect it."

But other sources said O'Brien and McGovern met privately, and that O'Brien said at one point that he would reconsider the decision to leave the post. These sources added that McGovern replied he would have to further consider, and O'Brien then said he would revert to his original position and leave the chairmanship.

Mrs. Westwood's active political work began in 1954 when she became a voter district vice chairman. She made an unsuccessful bid in 1964 to become national committeewoman from Utah. She was appointed to the position in 1968 and later ,as elected to a full term.

Mrs. Westwood served as cochairman of McGovern's presidential campaign organization.

Paterson was the first black to run for statewide office in New York when in 1970 he was the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor. Paterson is a new member of the Democratic National Committee.

Two Held In Copper Thefts

CHARLESTON — Larry Gale Hester, 27, and John Bryant Short, 33, both of Evansville, Ind., are being held in Mississippi County jail for investigation of stealing an esimated $30,000 to $50,000 worth of copper tubing, wiring and other merchandise from Guy Grey Company in Paducah, Ky.

The men were arrested Friday afternoon at the Bertrand interchange of Interstate 57 by Highway Patrolman Robert Edelman and Sheriff W. J. (Pedro) Simmons.

According to Simmons, two men parked a rental truck which had two flat tires in the yard of the Charles Parr home near Bertrand about 7 a.m. Friday. The men told Parr they would return for the truck shortly.

When they did not return, Parr went to a rental truck business in Sikeston and and asked when the men would return for the truck. The Sikeston business knew nothing about the truck, but when they investigated, copper was found in the truck and authorities were called.

A white Oldsmobile with Indiana license plates was observed going east on Interstate 57 by Patrolman Edelman. The car turned off at the Bertrand interchange and drove toward the Parr home. When they reached the Parr driveway, the men reportedly backed out when they observed the patrol car approaching. Edelman and Simmons arrested the pair as they reached the interchange again.

The duo is being held pending warrants for investigation of stealing from McCracken County, Ky., authorities.

State Auditor Kit Bond Faces Legal Challenge

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor Christopher "Kt" Bond faced a challenge today as to whether he may be holding his office illegally under the Missouri Constitution because he lived in other states from 1963-68.

Also, according to the Constitution, there may be a question as to whether he is eligible to run for governor. He is a candidate for the Republican nomination for that race.

The governor and auditor candidates must have lived in the state for a full 10 years before the election, the Constitution says.

Bond, en route to Kansas City Friday night, told The Associated Press that he lived from 1965-68 in Washington, D.C., where he was a lawyere with the firm of Covington and Brundage.

Bond also confirmed a copyright article by the Jefferson City Post-Tribune that he lived in Atlanta, Ga., from July 1, 1963, to August of 1964, when he was sworn in as a lawyer there.

From July, 1963, to June, 1964, Bond was a law clerk for the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

Section 3 of Article 4 of the state Constitution says a governor must be "a resident of this state at least 10 years next before election."

Section 13 of the same article says "The state auditor shall have the same qualifications as the governor."

Bond's aides said they interpreted the Constitution to mean "voting reisency."

There was no indication any legal action was planned.

Bond, 33, said he never has voted outside the state.

The issue came up two years ago when he ran for auditor, he said.

"I have always maintained my voting residency in Mexico, Mo., and I have never voted elsewhere," Bond said.

"Although I was physically in Georgia," he said, "I ne er intended to make that my permanent home or my voting residence, which I demonstrated by working and voting in the elections in Missouri in 1964."

"This is a desperate effort on the part of Democratic politicians to save one party rule in Missouri," Bond said.

"The fact that this was held up for 18 months after I was sworn in as auditor is an indication of the lengths the Democratic machine in Jefferson City will go to prevent change in Missouri government. This is the old politics at its worst."

The Post-Tribune, which last week endorsed one of Bond's opponents, Gene McNary, for the GOP nomination, reproduced documents showing that Bond signed a statement in 1964 saying he had been for six months "a bona fide resident and citizen of Georgia at the time of

Three were killed in separate traffic accidents in Southeast Missouri late Friday and early today, according to reports by the highway patrol.

Fifteen-year -old Cecil Hicks of Sikeston Route Four was dead on arrival at Missouri Delta Community Hospital Friday night after being struck by a car at 9:40 p.m. while riding a bicycle on a New Madrid County road three miles south of Morehouse. Driver of the car was Donald Campbell, 21, of Canalou. Passengers in the Campbell car who received minor injuries were Randy Haley, 22, and Gloria Flowers, 22, both of Morehouse. They were treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital and released.

According to the patrol, Campbell could not avoid hitting the Hicks youth. No charges were filed and there will be no inquest.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hicks of Sikeston Route Four.

The body is at Watkins and Sons Funeral Home in Morehouse.

John D. Everts, 40, of Granite City, Ill., was killed in a one-car crash west of Perryville in Perry County Friday at 2 p.m. Everts' two children, Jennifer and John D., Jr., were seriously injured in the crash and are in Perry County Hospital in Perryville.

Mary Mandy Jones, 70, o St. Louis was killed today at 12:45 a.m. when the pickup truck in which she was riding attempted to pass another car on Interstate 55 and rammed into the rear of a tractor- trailer truck. The accident occurred two miles north of Benton.

Driver of the pickup truck was Charles Joe Foreman, 28, also of St. Louis, and passengers in the truck were Artis Louise Jones, 44, and Silas McRay Hitchens, both of St. Louis. All were injured and taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Harold Clayton Taylor, 44, of Beech Grove, Ark., was driving the tractor-trailer rig and was not injured.

Eagleton Says Demos Will Push Registration

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton says the first order of business in the 1972 Democratic presidential camapign is a massive voter registration effort.

"It's going to take enthusiasm," the vice presidential nominee told the cheering airport crowd as he returned to his home state Friday evening from Miami Beach and the party's national convention.

But if the young and blacks and other elements in society that are now under registered in places like Kansas City and Eagleton's home town of St. Louis can be brought into a full role in the election, Eagleton said, "there's no doubt in my mind that Sen. George McGovern will be in the White House."

Some 400 supporters turned out at K nsas City Municipal Airport to welcome Eagleton's flight from Miami less than 24 hours after the 42-year-old freshman senator was nominated as McGovern's running mate.

Eagleton addressed the gathering for several minutes, talked with newsmen and then visited with a few friends at a private home here for a few hours before retiring early for what he readily conceded was a much-needed rest.

He had a speaking engagement today before the National Audio-Visual Association at Kansas City's Hotel Muehlebach.

He planned to fly to Washington immediately afterward.

Eagleton told newsmen at the airport he was "between euphoria and terribly tired. I never expected to be part of the ticket. I'm thrilled and honored."

The senator acknowledged such forces as labor and the old-line Democrats were vital in the campaign. He said he expected eventual strong support from labor.

"The Democratic ticket is perhaps not all some labor leaders wanted it to be," he said, but added he felt the comparison between the Republican and Democratic slates would prompt strong support forh his party's nominee.

Of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri, who had been cool to McGovern, Eagleton said "He has assured me that he will work assiduously for this ticket."

Final I-55 Link Poured In Area

FRUITLAND — The last section of Interstate 55 between St. Louis and Hayti was poured this week, according to Bill Shaw, Missouri State Highsay Department district 10 engineer.

The 29- mile section between Fruitland and Brewer should be ready for traffic in the fall. A considerable amount of work remains to be done, according to Shaw, including paving the entry and exit ramps, shoulder work, erosion control and installation of guard rails and signs.

The latest stretch of concrete was poured 11 years and three months after the first section of road was laid.

The highway from St. Louis to Memphis is scheduled to be completed in its entirety in the fall of 1973. Besides the Fruitland to Brewer section, only a 14-mile stretch between Hayti and two miless north of the Arkansas state line remains to be completed.

Morley To Conduct Attitude Survey

MORLEY — Residents will soon have an opportunity to tell what is right or wrong in the community through a "community attitude survey," according to an announcement made by the Morley Community Betterment Club.

Mrs. Gene Holland, survey chairman, said a questionnaire covering nearly every phase of the community, including the business and residential areas, recreation and community services, will be circulated to residents soon.

The object of the survey is to find out exactly where the community is doing a good job and where it is falling down.

The survey is the first step in a community betterment program in which the Rotary Club and the Women's Federated Club will work with the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development.

The betterment program will cover every phase of the community — business, agriculture, education, beautification and many others.

Details of the survey will be announced later.

CONSCIENTIOUS POLICEWORK FRUSTRATED

The New York City Police Department made a random study of 136 cases of felony arrests for criminal possession of hand guns. If the arrested parties had been convicted and sentenced to maximum terms, they could have been given a total of 952 years in prison.

Unfortunately for the law-abiding public not one was convicted of the original felony charge. They were either dismissed or reduced to lesser charges. The 136 criminals served a total of five years and four months, or about one month per offense.

Other crime statistics prove that the police are doing their part in catching criminals. In 1960, New York City police made 35,629 felony arrests. In 1971, they made 94,042. That is an increase of 165 per cent.

But what happened after the police did their part in preserving law and order? Only 552 of the 94,000 went to trial. The others escaped justice the same way the hand-gun felons did — dismissal, charge reduction and plea bargaining.

Plea bargaining is an agreement by the accused to plead guilty to a lesser charge if the felony is reduced to that. Thus, vandalism becomes mere mischief. Plea bargaining enables a judge to clear his docket without a trial and puts the criminal back on the street. The process is usually repeated before very long.

This revolving door justice is hurting police and civilian morale. Witnesses do not want to leave work to testify against someone who will be free again soon. Policemen, criticized from all sides, begin to doubt whether diligent work is worth the effort.

The only people who like permissive justice, understanding courts and sympathetic newsmen are the criminals. Every crook likes a license to steal.

"HE. D TAX"
HEAL \CHES

Of \l the many forms of federal, state and local taxatio. the property tax has long been regarded as the least popular. But the "head taxes" now being collected at a growing number of municipal airports may soon lay claim to that title. The usual practice is to collect a $1 fee from each emplaning passenger and to use the revenue for airport maintenance. Philadelphia, however, levies a $2 tax on both arriving and departing air passengers and puts the proceeds in its general revenue fund. A court hearing on the legality of the Philadelphis tax is scheduled for Tuesday, July 18.

Opponents of taxes on travelers often cite an 1867 U. S. Supreme Court decision, Crandall v. Nevada. At issue in that case was a Nevada statute that levied "a tax of one dollar upon every person leaving the state by any railroad, stagecoach or other vehicle engaged or employed in the business of transporting passengers for hire." In striking down the statute, the Court argued: "If the state can tax a railroad passenger one dollar, it can tax him one thousand dollars. If one state can do this, so can every state. And thus one or more states covering the only practicable routes of travel from the east to the west, or from the north to the south, may totally prevent or seriously burden all transportation of passengers from one part of the country to another."

In recent years, the Court has taken a more permissive view of head taxes. Such levies now pass muster if they are "uniform, fair and practical" and if the revenue is used wholly or in large part to maintain a public facility. Thus, in an April 18, 1972, decision affirming the right of a group of cities in New Hampshire and Indiana to levy taxes on air passengers, the Court held: "The facility provided at public expense aids rather than hinders the right to travel. A permissible charge to help defray the cost of the facility is therefore not a burden in the constitutional sense."

The Philadelphia tax no doubt will be challenged on the ground that it does not directly benefit the city's airport. Instead, the $14 million that the city hopes to raise from the tax in fiscal 1973 will be used to pare the growing municipal budget deficit. Philadelphia's need for the money is clear, but the courts may well force the city to seek it elsewhere.

GO-AHEAD URGED FOR 'NO-FAULT'

The news that car owners in Massachusetts will receive an estimated $30 to $40 million in refunds from auto insurance companies should give a tremendous boost to the push for "no-fault" automobile insurance in 48 other states.

(Florida is the only other state besides Massachusetts which has adopted the complete system.)

The Massachusetts Supreme Court, upholding a decision by the state's insurance commissioner, ruled that companies must reduce their compulsory auto insurance rates in 1972 by 27.6 per cent and return the difference to policy holders.

For a car owner in Boston, for example, this will drop his premium to around $47. In 1970, before no-fault, it was $117 and had already fallen to $73 in the first year of no-fault.

Despite the experience of Massachusetts, "fault or no-fault" continues to be a hotly debated question. The stakes are immense, with some 110 million motor vehicles on U. S. roads and an annual record of 16 million traffic accidents, involving 28 million of those vehicles, resulting in 55,000 fatalities, 2 million disabling injuries and over $9 billion in losses.

Under the present, much - criticized system that has prevailed since the beginning of the automobile age, fault is the determining factor in the payment of accident claims. The person who causes the accident is required to pay the losses, either directly or, more usually, through his insurance company.

But fault must first be proved, and this can mean years of waiting for court adjudication. More often than not, out-of -court settlements are made, which may be less adequate for aggrieved claimants. Large chunks of the benefits are eaten up by lawyers' fees.

Under the various no- fault plans which have been advanced, the whole idea of liability is abandoned. All parties involved in an accident receive immediate compensation for their actual damages and medical expenses from their own insurance companies through the right to sue for damages higher than a certain amount, say $2,500, is reserved.

Insurance companies had contested the Massachusetts rate - cutting order, but not no-fault itself. Almost every company has come up with its own version of the concept.

Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company, fourth largest insurer of autos in the country, has designed what it calls one of the most complete plans. The American Insurance Institute advocates its model plan for the industry. The Automobile Manufacturers Association has announced its support of no-fault.

"No-fault has become a popular phrase," says Thomas B. McDonough, a vice-president of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies. "But that doesn't mean the legislatures will go ahead and adopt the fundamental reforms that are needed to correct the present system.

"If people don't speak up to their representatives, the chances are that the legislatures will either do nothing about auto insurance, or enact bogus no-fault plans."

President Nixon recently urged the nation's governors to make no-fault a matter of "top priority." Earlier, Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe warned the governors that Congress would act, perhaps next year, on a national no-fault auto insurance plan if the states fail to do so.

Thus the real question surrounding no-fault seems to be, not if, but how soon.

HAVE YOU EVER FACED THE POSSIBILITY THAT YOUR COUNTRY COULD CEASE TO EXIST?

Nations richer and more powerful in their day than we are in this, have been sabotaged, defeated, enslaved.

Babylon was the largest and richest nation of its time, but its lust for luxury made it an easy mark for the Medes and Persians who overran it, and divided its land and enslaved people between them.

Rome was a greater military power than we ever were, but when free bread and circuses became more important to the people than hard work and patriotism, Rome was invaded and looted by the tougher Vandals.

The Incas were the most civilized, richest people in the Americas, but ruthless, better - armed invaders destroyed them as a nation, and looted everything they owned and had spent generations in creating.

In every case it was the self-indulgent weakness of the victim which made the victory of the invader easy.

How strong is a nation which allows foreign competitors to capture the world leadership from one after another of its most vital industries?

How virile is a nation which allows this or that group to decide not to fight the enemy?

How wise is a nation which gives away so much of its substance abroad and at home that it can no longer afford to keep up its own strength and protection?

How intelligent is a nation more careful to protect the criminal than his victim?

How weak is a nation which allows bureaucracy and a socialist philosophy to run riot and squander billions?

Undoubtedly there were Babylonians, Romans, Incas who warned against overindulgence and weakness, who warned that each citizen is responsible for his nation, and that that responsibility cannot be shrugged off onto officials. But to those who warned of impending trouble there was then as now the smug sneer, "It can't happen here."

But it did.

STRONG RIGHT TO WORK SUPPORT

A recently completed opinion poll shows national sentiment is strongly opposed to compulsory unionism, a condition that bodes well for the ultimate passage of a national right to work law.

In a national sampling of voters, Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., found 62 per cent of Americans favor the proposition that a man can hold a job whether or not he belongs to a union.

By contrast, only 27 per cent of those questioned favored the practice in which a man can get a job if he doesn't belong to a union but has to join after he is hired. Only 4 per cent approved the arrangement under which a man can get a job only if he already belongs to a union.

It is obvious from this survey that members of Congress who have opposed a national right to work law have been badly out of step with most of the public.

In fact, it is now apparent they have been espousing the cause of a minority comprised of just slightly more than a quarter of the American people while turning their back on 62 per cent of the population that opposes forced unionism.

In the long run it is extremely doubtful that mandatory unionism is even good for unions and union members. Recent statistics show that only two of the country's 56 major employment areas with "substantial" unemployment in April were in right to work states.

This would indicate that individual freeom promotes economic vitality and that compulsory unionism has the reverse effect, actually causing more unemployment.

A good, well- run union should not need to force workers to join. It can and should stand on its own merits. A bad, poorly- run union certainly should not be thrust upon employes for any reason.

If the Republican party wants to reflect the will of most Americans it will adopt a plank in its platform favoring passage of a national right to work law along the lines of a bill proposed by Rep. Sam Steiger of Arizona.

Steiger's bill would make voluntary unionism the law of the land and abolish compulsory unionism.

Under this measure a worker could join or refuse to join a union without any reprisals being made against him or any restrictions being placed upon his employment.

KEELER URGES GREATER POLITICAL AWARENESS IN '70.

"This year's elections at all levels will be extremely important to you," W' W. Keeler, Chairman, National Association of Manufacturers, told members of the Rotary Club of Kansas City, Mo. "This is because government at all levels will be challenged more than ever to grapple with the problems of our changing times."

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Phillips Petroleum Company, Mr. Keeler stressed the speed of change, saying that a host of advocates are pressing demands upon us which simply cannot be coped with in the time spans they call for.

Vital Issues

Environment, consumer protection, law and order, war and peace, inflation and the state of our economy, minority problems, and urban crises, are

"vital issues, deserving thoughtful solution," Mr. Keeler said.

"While business may be better equipped than any other segment of our society to help solve these problems," Mr. Keeler added, "it cannot do so without a receptive climate in government."

These are the problems that "captivate young people," he explained. "They are going to play an increasing role in acting upon them," he said, "for these young people are tomorrow's electorate."

Presidential Vote

Mr. Keeler said that in 1972 over 12 million people will vote for president for the first time. By 1980, 40 per cent of the electorate will be under 35.

Comparing today's political climate to that of the late 1800's when farmers, young people, laborers and others who wanted more voice in government banded together in the Populist movement, he asserted that today's "New Politics" is a politics of involvement by more people, more deeply concerned about issues and more committed to their solutions.

"Business has two options in this day of the New Politics," he said. "We can stand on the sidelines...or we can become an integral part of the most exciting and fruitful period in our history so far as the relationship between the people and their government is concerned."

"Well, you went out with another one of those wild college boys last night, " she began. "I hope you kept your eyes open just like I told you to do."

SIMPLE EXERCISES BOOST HUMAN POTENTIAL

There is a relationship between good physical coordination and mental coordination. Theorists wonder why, and some won't believe it, but both mental and physical coordination can be impressively improved by proper, simple exercises.

I learned from experience that the "creeping" exercises work. "Creeping" saved me after I had collapsed the 11th dorsal vertebra in my back. I was driving from Tyler to the oil field on a new hard-topped road. We were meeting an automobile and I could see the driver washaving trouble in the misting rain keeping on the road. I pulled over to the ample shoulder of the road and stopped. The oncoming driver when gaining control tried to right the car too quickly, turning the soft-cover car upside down. My brother Sherman, from Miles City, Mont., and I pulled one man from beneath the wreck and learned another was still underneath the soft-topped car. We three ran to the opposite side of the car and, with me in the middle, tried to lift the wreck off the man. I could see his chest was pinned beneath the back of the seat. Within two or three minutes other cars stopped and joined us in the rescue.

I suddenly experienced such excruciating pain that I could participate no further in the rescue. Dr. Charles F. Clayton, President of the Orthopedic Association, prescribed a difficult, spine-stretching exercise and I regained by ability to walk. I learned about "creeping" from the crawling and creeping exercises and in a short time I ceased the more difficult spine-stretching exercise of Dr. Clayton.

Remarkable results in improving the coordination of babies are achieved through crawling and creeping. If they are not encouraged to walk too soon, they develop their intellectual potential more fully. HLH

Meany's Political Acupuncture: McGovern saying privately he needs big labor to win

MIAMI -- The Children's Hour is over. Time is now for the old professionals' Clockwork Orange. Tough. Brutal. You could sense this once you got behind the inner scenes at Sen. McGovern's convention Hotel Doral headquarters suites. he moment his strategists had the nomination wrapped up, they began springing more press leaks about "labor" than the old ex-plumber George Meany could fix.

The tactic is to woo the forces of the allegedly aggrieved old labor curmudgeon. It will succeed eventually.

Priavtely McGovern has told his aides, especially the campaign-hardened Frank Mankiewicz, that without labor "we cannot win." That's true. He can't. That's why one of his first phone conversations early Tuesday morning went to Humbert Humphrey. As predicted in this column, "Hubert" will be McGovern's envoy to the AFL-CIO's court and the reluctant fire-spitting dragon who is its chief.

To understand this interplay, which most observers are misinterpreting, one needs to know the cast of characters and their clout. McGovern and Mankiewicz understand this.

They know that the AFL-CIO has 50,000 locals which swing into action at election time. And that the AFL—CIO has some 140 key organizers working with veteran regional directors. The McGovern team knows that it isn't only the national Committee on Political Education (COPE) which spends money -- and that, should each of the 50,000 locals spend merely $1,000 apiece on the election, this comes to $50 million.

They know that I.W. Abel's United Steelworkers has over 600 field organizers who turn into political directors at campaign time. So do the "international reps" of 100 other unions. They know that "Abe" Able directed 50 Steelworkers who were delegates to the Democratic convention.

They know that a "former" steel union official ran an electronic trailer on Convention Hall grounds. To it came scores of Senators and Representatives. They video-taped comments on the charade inside. If needed, their comments were edited or refilmed by experts and dispatched to the airport so they'd be available all over the nation in local constituencies in the morning. This is the money, equipment and expertise Democratic candidates need vitally.

The McGovern team knows it drubbed the labor team in public -- union men who heard powerful state labor federations such as those of Ohio and Pennsylvania who were for "Hubert." McGovern knows he can't carry New York or California over the bitter opposition of New York's AFL-CIO leader Ray Corbett, already close to Nelson Rockefeller, and over the enmity of "Hubert's" California friends such as the labor federation's chief Jack Henning, an intimate of Meany. And McGovern knows that San Francisco's Mayor Alioto needs labor to "make him look good," especially in northern California. So the Dakotan needs that combination of antagonists as allies.

McGovern knows that he needs help even with the young people. They must be registered to vote. Labor has financed an outfit called "Frontlash" to get the teenage legions lined up. And labor's money subsidizes the black A. Philip Randolph Institute which has gone into a hundred ghettoes for black votes, old and young.

So, though George Meany will be 78 years old, he'll be a mighty political ally. He can turn these forces on, and off if the curt warrior of some 12 Presidential campaigns decides to fight against McGovern all the way.

Odds are, however, that he'll bargain, not fight. Every scowl a maneuver, every grunt, every chomp on the cigar a tactic. Thus he feels he can get more out of President Nixon by leaking all those stories of the Democratic party in shambles or of McGovern's mushiness on Mao and Moscow. And Meany can get more out of McGovern by the artful use of political acupuncture.

And unless McGovern's neo-Galahads and Guineveres scrawl political graffiti over the marble walls of labor's national headquarters, Meany will have to permit his do-or-die Democratic colleagues to campaign for McGovern in the final Presidential campaign weeks.

Contrary to what some others have reported, there are at least 22 -- not just two -- of the 35-man AFL-CIO Executive Council members who are either for McGovern or are veteran Republican haters.

So the McGovern team feels it now needs only to make it possible for the old guard to save face and lossen its millions and minions. That's why the Children's Hour is over. If the "kids and kooks," as the embittered $31,000 - year -Al Barkan, labor's political arm-twister called them on the convention floor, turn off labor's elder statesmen, the young people also will turn off the money spigots, and that would assure McGovern's loss of enough key states -- such as New York, California, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan, Texas, too. Which would have him wandering around in the 1976 convention as lonely and unheeded as Gene McCarthy was here the other day.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

MIAMI BEACH -- George McGovern won the presidential nomination in the Fontainbleau suite of Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien before the convention opened.

McGovern needed a favorable ruling from O'Brien on two key procedural questions. If O'Brien had ruled against him, McGovern would have been short of the votes he needed to win the crucial California credentials fight.

He was accompanied to O'Brien's suite by Connecticut's astute Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, a key member of McGovern's political brain-trust. They urged the beleaguered chairman, for the sake of party unity, to rule for McGovern.

Choosing their words carefully, they reminded O'Brien that McGovern's supporters were essentially the same people who had been shut out of the 1968 Democratic convention. They had worked long and hard for the nomination in 1972. If they should feel that they had been cheated again by aparliamentary ruling, they might split the party apart.

McGovern and Ribicoff were careful to make no threats but merely to describe the mood of their zealous followers.

O'Brien said he didn't intend to continue as party chairman. He has served without salary and he must get back to earning a living, he said.

McGovern and Ribicoff suggested pointedly that O'Brien shouldn't want to leave a splintered party as his legacy. The chairman got the message and later ruled McGovern's way.

One ruling gave McGovern 120 California delegates but denied his opponents the remaining 151 delegates for the crucial vote on seating the California delegation. The other ruling permitted the issue to be settled by a majority of delegates eligible to vote, rather than a majority of the full convention. This was worth another 70 votes for McGovern.

O'Brien Intimidated?

Representatives of all the presidential candidates were summoned to a secret meeting where party counsel Joseph Califano and parliamentarian James O'Hara announced O'Brien's decision.

Max Kampelman, representing Hubert Humphrey, blurted angrily: "I just want you to communicate a message to the chairman from the Humphrey campaign committee. His rulings are appalling. We can see no legal basis for them. We must consider them to be acts of hostility."

Kampelman suggested that O'Brien had favored McGovern because he knew the Humphrey forces would remain loyal to the party but feared the McGovern forces might bolt.

The only explanation for O'Brien's rulings, snapped Kampelman, was "that the chairman has submitted to acts of intimidation."

Califano denied that there had been any "intimidation."

"The use of that word is charitable, " shot back Kampelman.

The final role call on the California seating confirmed that O'Brien's rulings had been essential to McGovern. Without them, he would have been 11 votes short. Then the Stop McGovern forces would have won and the McGovern bandwagon would have started to break down.

GOLDBRICK PAY

The four Democratic senators who were the prime contenders for their party's presidential nomination -- McGovern, Humphrey, Muskie and Jackson -- are now in debt to the taxpayers for more than $50,000.

This is the amount of senatorial salary which they have improperly collected while they were away from the Senate campaigning in presidential primaries.

Federal law provides that, "the Secretary of the Senate . ...shall deduct from the monthly payments of each member ...the amount of his salary for each day that he has been absent from the Senate...unless such members assigns as the reason... the sickness of himself or some member of his family."

Based on information supplied by aides to the four men, McGovern was absent for 90 days, Humphrey 85, Muskie 69 and Jackson 65. Yet, during the periods of their absenteeism, they collected about $50,400 from the U.S. Treasury.

The taxpayers are not likely to get it back, however. The Secretary of the Senate is elected by the Senate and is about as rough on absentees as a truant officer would be if he were appointed by school children.

The present secretary, Francis Valeo, says he has been getting a number of letters demanding to know why he doesn't enforce the law. Valeo has a ready explanation: "The law," he says, "hasn't been enforced for over a century." Besides, he adds, just how a Senator should "pursue his responsibility to the Constitution and the people ...is best judged by the Senator and the Senate."

Urge Acceptance Of Signatures

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sponsors of a proposed "Sunshine Law" took their case to court Friday in an effort to get their open meetings proposal on the November general election ballot.

They asked Circuit Judge James T. Riley to compel Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick to accept about 9,000 additional petition signatures which did not get filed before the midnight July 6 deadline.

As an alternative, they urged that Kirkpatrick be ordered to return all the petitions already filed so they could be used in a possible later election.

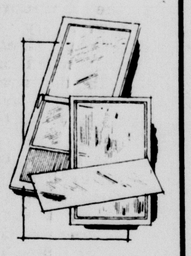

The "Sunshine Law" petition drive was sponsored by the Citizen's Lobby. It said all Missourians should be allowed to vote on the plan to require public agencies of every level of government to conduct their meetings in public, open to the press and everyone else.

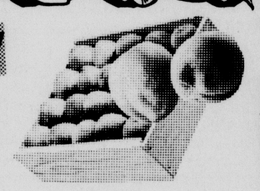

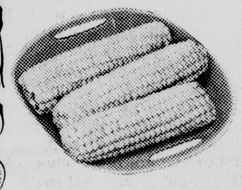

Pays Taxes

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — After months of wrangling with the government over back taxes, Larry Hermone finally paid off the $2,500 he owed - in pennies.

A truck loaded with 250,000 pennies, weighing a ton, pulled up in front of the Internal Revenue Service office here Friday, and the coins were turned over to an IRS agent.

"I don't think it's funny," an agent muttered.

Judge Orders Ease Of Wage Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge, in the first successful court challenge of President Nixon's economic stabilization program, has ordered a relaxation of wage controls that could benefit 14 million workers. Union leaders had sought the decision.

U.S. District Judge William B. Jones ruled Friday that the Cost of Living Council (COLC) was "in excess of agency authority" when it limited exemptions from wage controls to persons earning less than $1.90 an hour.

The ruling meant the council could no longer use $1.90 as the figure beyond which wage raises have been limited to 5.5 per cent.

In granting a summary judgment in a suit brought by several labor unions, including the AFL-CIO, Jones did not set a new exemption figure.

However, he cited a $3.35-anhour figure based on a Bureau of Labor Statistics study, which said this wage would provide the $6,960 considered adequate annual income for an urban family of four.

The AFL-CIO estimated about 14 million workers are making between $1.90 and $3.35 an hour and thus will be granted exemption from wage controls.

The Cost of Living Council had no immediate comment on the decision, but is expected to appeal the case.

The lawsuit was based on amendments to the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970, which provide that "any individual whose earnings are substandard or who is amongst the working poor" should be exempt from wage controls.

The $1.90 figure was set by the COLC after the Pay Board failed to provide a cutoff figure and rejected figures of $3.50 and $2.20. A council spokesman said at the time the $1.90 cutoff would exempt 21 per cent of the non-supervisory workers while $3.35 would exempt 50 per cent.

Peace Talks Begin Again

PARIS (AP) — Hanoi Poliburo member Le Duc Tho returned to Paris today and said he is prepared to hold new secret talks with Dr. Henry Kissinger if Kissinger has "something new" to discuss.

Tho has held a series of private talks with Kissinger in the past. He was asked if he is ready to meet with President Nixon's national security advisor again.

He replied: "If Mr. Kissinger has something new to say and shows an interest in seeing me, I am ready to see him to discuss a correct solution to the Vietnam problems."

Tho said he had no other statements to make beyond what was said earlier this week by Xuan Thuy, head of the North Vietnamese delegation to the peace talks. Thuy has reiterated that the Communist seven-point plan is the "correct basis" for settlement of the conflict. The plan calls for the United States to announce a total troop withdrawal date, the immediate resignation of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and the setting up of a coalition government in Saigon.

DR. R. A. RITTER, left, of Cape Girardeau addresses several hundred visitors on the lakeside of R. B. Potashnick Lake at Camp Lewallen near Silva Thursday evening. Potashnick listens as Sgt. Joe Matthews of Missouri State Highway Patrol adjusts the public address system.

Dedicate Scout Lake

SILVA — Formal dedication ceremonies were held Thursday night for Lake R. B. Potashnick at Camp Lewallen for Boy Scouts in Wayne County.

Dr. R. A. Ritter of Cape Girardeau delivered the dedication address, describing Potashnick as "a man who has thought of others along the way through his busy life. He has taken time to hear about the needs of his community and has responded with action."

Potashnick was approached with the idea of loaning some heavy construction equipment to the lake construction project when it was first planned in 1966. Instead, he assigned engineers to test the area for its ability to hold water and then sent an entire construction crew to handle the project for the camp. The lake was completed in 1968.

Potashnick was presented a miniature canoe paddle inscribed with formal thanks from Southeast Missouri Council of Boy Scouts for his contributions in building the seven-acre lake.

File Conflicting Reports On Petition Signatures

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — No irregularities have been found in signatures on transportation bond issue petitions from the q8th District, says Byron Kinder, Cole County prosecutor.

The Jefferson City Post-Tribune also reported Friday that no fraudulent signatures were found in a random sampling of 300 signatures of persons in the Dixon area.

Earlier, the St. Louis GlobeDemocrat said it had checked 50 signatures in the 8th District and 41 of the persons said they hadn't signed the petition.

The secretary of state's office is studying the petitions.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — State Sen. John Schneider (D-Florissant), turned over information Friday to the St. Louis circuit attorney that a group of juveniles was paid to write forged signatures on petitons seeking to place a proposed $730 million transportation bond issue on the November ballot, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported today in a copyrighted story.

Many forged signatures were found on petitions from the 8th Congressional District which were turned in to Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick's office, the newspaper said earlier this week.

King Plans To Push Campaign

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Plans to step up his campaign the remaining weeks preceding the state's Aug. 8 primary were announced Friday by Republican gubernatorial candidate R. J. "Bus" King.

King, who in June said restricted financial backing was forcing curtailment of his active campaigning, said "unexpected contributors" have offered solutions.

"While we do not expect to mount the same kind of activities we had planned, it is probable that I will be able to travel throughout the state," he said.

"Many people seem to have assumed that I had withdrawn from the race. That is not the case," King added.

Finds Bathing Dangerous

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP) — This just hasn't been Eddie McCann's week.

First, McCann suffered minor injuries after being hit by a car while taking a bath.

Police quoted Gary Tidwell, 20, of Coolidge, driver of the car, as saying his car crashed into the wall of McCann's bathroom after he suffered an epileptic seizure.

While McCann was recuperating at Pinal County General Hospital, burglars broke into his store at Superior Thursday night.

State Supreme Court Narrows Senate Race

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court has ruled Brick Storts III of St. Louis off the primary ballot as a Democratic candidate in the 1st Senatorial District of St. Louis.

Previously the court has ruled in residence cases involving members of the House that the House is the sole judge of the qualifications of its members. Storts urged the court to follow the same rule on candidates.

But the court said that doesn't apply to candidates who, under the Constituion, must be valid residents of their districts in order to run.

Rep. Donald J. Gralike, D-St. Louis, brought the suit. With Storts off the ballot, he has only one opponent, David Lee Houlihan. There is no Republican candidate so Gralike would be elected automatically if he wins the primary.

The 1st District seat is being vacated by veteran Sen. Robert Pentland, D-St. Louis, who is retiring.

Circuit Judge Ninian M. Edwards, appointed as special judge to find the facts in the case, concluded Storts lived in Clayton until April 18 this year, when he moved to a 1st District address in St. Louis County, 4290 Chateau de Ville.

Meat Plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meat and poultry plants operating entirely with Missouri will be inspected by the U.S. Agriculture Department beginning Aug. 15.

The move affects about 300 meat and 22 poultry plants, and will save the state the $530,000 appropriated by the Missouri Legislature to continue state inspection.

A USDA spokesman said Friday that operators who plan to continue operations after Aug. 14 must notify the USDA.

Investigate Soldier's Death

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. military command said today it is investigating field reports that a disgruntled South Vietnamese marine shot and killed a U.S. Army helicopter crewman.

The field reports said the South Vietnamese marine shot the American in the head when he refused to let him aboard a helicopter near Quang Tri City on Thursday.

The command said it could not confirm the report but acknowledged that an American crewman was killed by small arms fire. It did not use the term "enemy fire" as it normally does in casualty reports. The victim's name was withheld.

The command said that on Thursday afternoon an Army UH1 helicopter crashed on takeoff while evacuating wounded South Vietnamese marines two miles northeast of Quang Tri City.

"Shortly thereafter," the command said, "a second U.S. helicopter landed and extracted the crew of the downed helicopter. During this extracton, one of the rescue crew members was killed by small arms fire. An investigation is being conducted."

Ma Bell

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., did not violate labor laws by ordering employes to change T-shirts which had the statement "Ma Bell is a Cheap Mother" written on them, the National Labor Relations Board ruled here Friday.

The NLRB ruled the shirts carried an obscene connotation and that the company was within its right ordering the employes to change the shirts or leave the premises.

The shirts were worn by 23 Bell employes during contract negotiations in St. Louis in June, 1971, and 19 workers walked off the job briefly when ordered to change the shirts.

Won't Aid McGovern

HILLSBORO, Mo. (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern will received no support in Missouri for his Democratic presidential bid from State Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, Democratic contender for the governor nomination.

Blackwell said Friday that he and McGovern are at "opposite ends of the poles" on such issues as forced busing, amnesty for draft resisters, marijuana and tax reform.

He described U.S. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, McGovern's running mate, as a "close personal friend," but said he would turn down any request for support from Eagleton.

He added that he would support neither McGovern nor President Nixon.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Uneconomic War

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

To Freddy and a group of citizens, the Vietnam War was about as popular as whale oil on fresh strawberries. And, insisting that the government's prosecution of the war violated the Constitution, they hustled themselves off to court where they demanded an order permanently restraining the government from spending any more bucks on the conflict.

"The needless loss of American lives and the war-induced inflation," they told the judge, "must be brought to a screeching halt. Under the Constitution, only Congress can declare war and not the President. Being President and being right isn't necessarily the same thing.

"That may be," responded the government, "and the place to disagree is at the ballot box, But, in the meanwhile, citizens have no standing in court to stop a war. Consequently, the case must be dismissed."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you send Freddy and his group home without being heard?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the history of our Constitution reveals that the power given to Congress to declare war was not a happenstance without purpose. Considering all the suffering that war entails, the intention of the Framers of the Constitution was to make it difficult for the nation to engage in war by lodging the power to declare war in a body of men rather than in one individual. The allegations of Freddy and his group as to the loss of life and economic injury to the nation caused by the Vietnam War, Concluded the judge, gives them sufficient standing to challenge the constitutionality of that conflict in court.

Ann Landers
Brides Who Look Sometimes Buy

Dear Ann Landers: When I first married several years ago, my dad used to come over almost every day at 11:30 a.m. and stay for lunch. It never occurred to him that I might have some place to go or something to do. He just assumed he was always welcome. I was inconvenienced plenty but I never said a word. If I had plans, I slipped upstairs to the extension telephone and postponed or cancelled them.

My husband was transferred to another state after two years, and one of the things I was happiest to leave behind was my dad's daily visits. Last week my husband informed me that he is being transferred back to our home town. The first thing I thought of was you-know- who.

Ann, my dad can talk the toenails off a brass monkey. I haven't the patience I once had. Also, I now have four children. What can I do about those daily noon visits without hurting his feelings? -- Badly Bent In Benton Harbor

Dear B.B.: Write your dad and tell him how delighted you are to be moving back. Tell him you'll miss those daily noon visits which will be impossible now with four youngsters and a bigger house, but you'll invite him as often as you can ---etc., etc

Dear Ann Landers: I laughed when I read that letter from "Wisconsin Ann Fan" who told about the ad in the paper by the owner of a bridal shop. It seems he was fed up with mothers parading through his store with their daughters pretending to be interested in buying gowns, when all they wanted was to look so they could go home and copy the style.

I'm a mother of a bride who was married two years ago. I sew quite well. To keep expenses down I decided to make my daughter's wedding gown. We went "shopping" for ideas.

In the bridal store my daughter tried on a perfectly magnificent gown with a cap and veil and fell in love with it. I knew at once I could never duplicate the fabric or workmanship. We bought the outfit on the spot.

I'll bet dozens of mothers have had this same experience, so I wish the bridal shop owners wouldn't be so critical of us "lookers." --Landers Readers In The Okinawa Star

Dear Reader: Thanks for writing -- and while I'm at it, I'd like you to know that I stopped in Okinawa on my way to Vietnam in 1967 and you have a nifty newspaper there.

Dear Ann Landers: I have this very good friend who is a sweet a woman as you would want to meet, but she has a personality trait that drives me up the wall. Should I tell her, as an act of friendship?

Whoever she's talking to, within five minutes she takes on that person's personality, speech patterns, facial expressions and hand gestures. Others have noticed it and commented. In the space of one hour at a cocktail party, she can be a Southern coquette, a French artist, a Midwestern housewife, a German scientist and a Cook County Democrat.

How about it? Should I tell her? -- Across the Room

Dear Ac: Leave her alone. In all probability her chameleon behavior is not contrived and she couldn't change if she wanted to. Incidentally, who put together that guest list?

Is an upcoming wedding driving you bananas? Ann Landers' comprehensive booklet, "The Bride's Guide," gives you the facts from the initial announcement to the last bill and who should pay it. To receive your copy, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Home Economic Students Use President's Home For Classroom

FULTON — What would happen if a group of college students began a "live-in" at the college president's home? This new form of social upheaval on today's campus occurred during the William Woods College 1972 four-week Short Term. Fifteen home economics students resided at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Cutlip, President and First Lady of William Woods College.

These students were enrolled in the class titled "Management of the Home" ... described as teaching the principles of the utilization of family resources with emphasis on the wise use of time and energy. The course includes both theory and practical experience in a residence by applying the principles of home management.

The Cutlip's home is built in such a fashion that they could retire comfortably to a second floor apartment, while the fifteen students controlled the entire basement and first floor. This area included the living room, den, dining room, breakfast area, kitchen, butler's pantry, and basement living quarters for the students ... affectionately called the garden room.

The "garden room" or student accommodations consisted of bunk beds, dressers, two large bathrooms, furnished lounge area, pool table, and a large closet often referred to as the "runway". The pool table is not an item normally found in the living quarters of a William Woods student, but its presence was justified since a protective plywood cover served as a table for working with clothing patterns.

Mrs. Katherine Love, chairman of the Department of Home Economics, was the class instructor. Although she did not actually live in the house with the students, many hours each day were spent at the Cutlip home. She gained 15 daughters, just as each student gained 14 sisters.

As the course description implies, home management was the goal. The students took over all food preparation, housekeeping, laundering, and other household responsibilities ... concentrating on the most efficient management methods of time, energy and money.

A daily lecture period of two hours gave the students time to structure their own management system, to share experiences, and to bring out and discuss all problems. During this period, they also covered a text and workbook along with taking part in three member panel discussions.

Miss Pat Evens, a participating senior, spoke of the first few days as complete chaos ..." it did not take us long to realize that for fifteen students to live and work together comfortably, it would be necessary to outline specific jobs and their respective responsibilities."

Very soon a workable organization of duties was established with each student being assigned a different position of responsibility each day. These positions were: Cook ... planning, shopping, preparing, serving, cleaning and clearing tables, selecting and costing meals, and directing assistant cooks. Cook's helper ... sets table, serves food, puts clean dishes away, empties trash and attends to any other details. Laundress ... collects sheets, towels and wash- cloths ... washes, drys, folds, and returns items. Iron pillow cases, placements and napkins as needed. Doorkeeper ... lock doors at night, check sign- out cards, turn out lights, answer phone during meals, and act as head hostess during guest meals. Housekeeper and three assistants ... responsible for all daily cleaning and any special cleaning that may have been assigned that day. Out- of- doors- keeper ... sweep patio, walks and porches as needed. Everyone ... dust own dresser, and pick up own area daily before class.

The students agreed that the position of cook was the most challenging because of the responsibilities and the daily budget of $2 per day per person. Within these limitations, the cooks major concern was that of daily nutritional balance. Cooking for 15 students and usually two guests per meal kept the class busy in the kitchen almost 24 hours a day. One student was overheard saying that she could cook broccoli for 17 people, but didn't know how to cook for herself. Meals were served at 8 a.m., noon and 6 p.m. Class was held from 9 to 11 a.m. daily. According to Miss Evans, this kept everyone moving and as soon as one crew had the dinner mess cleaned up, the next crew started preparations for the following day.

Luncheon or dinner guests were entertained almost daily. This not only gave good practice in gracious dining but also gave the guests an opportunity to see what was actually happening in the "Management of the Home Course." A student recalled that "the Cutlips ate dinner with us on only two occasions. The remainder of the time they had to fend for themselves ... one evening as we were seated around an elegant table setting, eating a meal fit for a king, Mrs. Cutlip came through the front door with two takeout bags from the local Dairy Queen."

Probably one of the most humorous situations was that of dating. Imagine the boyfriend's first reaction to meeting his date at the president's home, or the kidding he got when his dorm- mates or fraternity brothes passed on the message to call his girlfriend at the president's home.

Pat Evans called herself and her classmates the 15 mad housewives ... "as I read back through my diary (which each of us was required to keep) ... I did feel like a housewife. At 6:45 p.m. I was on my hands and knees scrubbing the floor ... yet, was to be dressed and ready for a cocktail party in fifteen minutes ... needless to say, I was late."

There is the impression that there was never a dull moment. For instance; one evening the doorbell rang ... someone after a short delay answered the door ... no one was there ... again the doorbell rang... still no one. However, after several more recurrences of the bell, someone realized that they had been locking the thumb bolts preventing the caller, Dr. Cutlip, from using his key to get into his own house.

Before someone answered each doorbell, with some delay, Dr. Cutlip had gone to a different entrance. A normal evening was spent with someone busy in the kitchen, others doing laundry, several watching television in the den and a few sewing or catching up on their studies.

The aforementioned diary was a class requirement containing a daily resume of duties performed with a mention of successes and failures ... and possible improvements. Quote one diary, "today I spilled bathroom cleaner on the carpet ... it immediately late through the nap leaving nothing but the basic weave. I wanted to crawl in the nearest hole and die ... but there wasn't one available."

Miss Evans summed up the whole experience. "We were all very apprehensive as the class began that first day, but as things progressed so did we and so did our relationships. I know I feel like I have 14 new sisters and a new set of parents. And yes, it was great having Dr. Cutlip as a 'house father'."

WEEDERS GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

The tomato is just about the most popular home garden vegetable, according to pollsters. It's pretty versatile, delicious as a fresh item, and it can be baked, stewed, fried, juiced and pickled. You can use it in salad and soup and as a topping for the hot dog, spaghetti. It may be transformed into catsup.

The plant, native to South America, was brought to Europe by early explorers and in France and Italy it was known as "Apple of Love."

Friends of Thomas Jefferson, who grew tomatoes, thought they were poisonous. So did many other people, and the tomato wasn't grown much in this country until 1835.

There's a lot of nutrition in tomatoes. Bulk for bulk, tomatoes provide as much Vitamin C as grapefruit and orange juice. One small tomato has about 20 per cent of the minimum daily requirement of Vitamin A. New tomato varieties have even more Vitamin A.

You can get tomatoes in yellow, orange, pink or red; round, pear-shape, globular or slightly flattened. There are commercial varieties in which all fruit ripens simultaneously, but home gardeners don't care about that.

If you want to start your own plants, figure on starting five to seven weeks before you would set them outdoors.

A family needs only a few plants, which makes it inexpensive and convenient to buy started plants. If you buy them in individual containers that can be set directly into the ground, there won't be much shock to the plants.

Tomatoes like full sun. Don't plant them near black walnut trees, roots of which produce juglone. This can stunt or kill tomatoes.

New Garden Book

Frank (Chico) Bucaro can't read or write. He knows his organic gardening. David Wellechinsky is a writer and he's learning organic gardening. So they combined talents to produce "Chico's Organic Gardening and Natural Living" (J. B. Lippincott Co.).

Chico raises all sorts of popular and less common vegetables in California. He tells how to deal with bugs and diseases, how to prune and how to cook, Italian style. He teaches organic gardening.

Chico's stories are down to earth. "If the plant is sick because something is wrong in the roots, the plant looks droopy, they start to look yellow and pale looking and then they fall down. If the plant needs food, the plant is a different kind of yellow than when she is sick. . . . If you just tell the plant you're going to take care of it, she will live a little longer. . ."

Tree Topping

Someone asked when was the best time to top a tree. I'd say no time was good unless the tree was ailing, damaged or had outgrown its allotted space.

Sharply cutting back a big tree lessens its attractiveness, leaves large wounds and causes weak growth that could cause the tree to break sooner.

Mellorinetype" frozen dessert and mix out put decreased 6 per cent and milk sherbert decreased 15 per cent from 1970.

Broilers Up 6% From '71

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — For the week ending July 1st, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reported 562,000 chicks were placed for broilers in the state. The figure is 6 per cent more than last year and 5 per cent more than the previous week.

Missouri hatcheries set a total of 270,000 eggs for broilers during the week ending July 1st. This was 14 per cent less than the previous week and 16 per cent less than the same period last year.

Australia May Boost Beef Shipments To U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Australia may be considering a boost in beef shipments to the United States by slowing down exports to other lucrative markets such as Japan and Europe, according to a government source.

About half the beef Australia exports already comes to U.S. consumers. But now that President Nixon has lifted quota restrictons, Australia may attempt to boost U.S. sales in hopes of getting a larger permanent share when quotas are re-imposed.

In other words according to the source, Australia would like to set a precedent this year to help build a case for a larger normal quota later on when controls resume.

When he suspended quote restrictions June 26, Nixon said the open door would apply only for the balance of 1972. The action was taken to make more meat available to American consumers at a time when U.S. beef cattle are at record high prices.

The Australian Meat Board, which oversees shipments to the country's world markets, is scheduled to meet later this month to discuss the opened U.S. market and the supply of export meat Australia is expected to have available during the balance of the year.

Donald M. Rube, assistant administrator for commodity programs in the Foreign Agricultural Service of USDA, said the provision in the 1964 meat quota law which requires quarterly estimates still applies.

The law which prescribes quotas for fresh, frozen or chilled beef, veal, mutton and goat, requires the secretary of agriculture to estimate every three months the amount of such meat expected to be imported during the entire calendar year.

That estimate, for the third quarter, was due by July 1. Rubel said he did not know exactly when it would be announced.

Before Nixon suspended the restrictions, the estimate was for 1.24 billion pounds to be imported this year, based on "voluntary restraint" agreements with the supplying countries.

Of that, Australia's share was 600.4 million pounds and New Zealand's 250.9 million. A dozen other countries, mainly in Latin America, accounted for the kbalance.

Through May—the most recent figure available—quota meat imports this year totaled about 456.4 million pounds, up 14 per cent from the first five months of 1971. The May shipments totaled 107.9 million pounds, a 41 per cent gain from the month last year.

Australia through May this year exported 219.6 million pounds of meat to U.S. markets, up 43 per cent from a year earlier, according to government records.

Lay-By Chemical Weed Control Recommendation

By THOMAS A. BROWN, JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD — The use of a "lay-by" application of herbicides for late season weed control in cotton fields will probably be a paying proposition in many cases this season. A heavy weed infestation can reduce cotton yields, increase harvest losses and result in cotton being reduced in grade by $15 to $20 per acre. The "lay-by" chemical treatment will do much to reduce such losses under certain conditions.

Much of the cotton is this area is smaller than usual at present, and skippy cotton stands are found in a number of fields. In such cases where cotton will not shade the row and middles soon after lay-by time, the lay-by chemical applications will usually pay good dividends. In addition profitable returns can usually be expected in cases of heavy rainfall, in fields where irrigation is practiced, or where weeds are usually a problem. It should be emphasized that late weed infestations cannot always be predicted at lay-by time.

Herbicides recommended for "lay-by" applications are Diuron (Karmex) and Linuron (Lorox) and both will give fair to good control of most common weeds and grasses. These herbicides are recommended as a broadcast, directed spray.

Diuron is recommended for use at rates ranging from one-half to one pound of active ingredient per acre on sandy loam soils to one to 1.5 pounds per acre on heavy clay soils. Cover the middles completely while directing the spray away from the cotton. Irrigate, if possible, to activate the chemical if rain does not fall within 10 days following treatment.

Linuron will do a better job on taller weeds than Diuron. Recommendations call for the application of one- half to three- fourth pound of active ingredient per acre after cotton plants are 15 inches tall. Apply in the same manner suggested for Diuron. In fields where a fall crop is to be seeded, this chemical should be considered as soil residues following the Diuron treatment may injure fall seeded crops.

Both chemicals should be applied to a weed- free soil following the last normal cultivation. If small weeds are present, a surfactant should be added at the rate of one quart per 100 gallons of spray solution.

The cost of application may be reduced by applying the herbicide in the process of making the last cultivation.

New Record Soybean Planting

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Crop and Livestock Service reports that soybeans planted for all purposes in the state cover an estimated 3.95 million acres, a new record for the state.

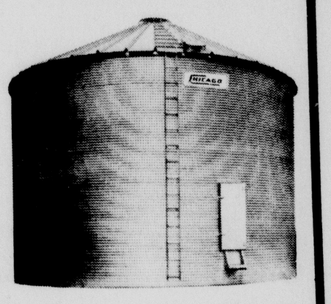

Conversely, acres of corn planted for all purposes totaled 2.72 million—an 18 per cent drop from last year and the lowest acreage on record since 1890 when 2.59 acres were harvested.

Sorghum planted in Missouri amounted to 430,000 acres compared to 740,000 last year. However, with the exception of 1971, it is the highest acreage since 1960 when 590,000 were planted.

Cotton acreage is up 22 per c ent from last year and wheat is up 19 per cent.

Plantings for oats, barley and rye were less than in 1971.

All men contend with the questions posed by the contrasts of sickness and health, poverty and plenty.
And ask the question "why". Why loneliness in a world that would join hands? Why war when the impulse of the heart is to love? The aching chasm between the real and the ideal everywhere provokes the question . . .

WHY?

In a world looking for answers maybe God is the place to start.
God is hope. God is now.

Record Ticket Sales

ST. LOUIS (AP)-- The St. Louis Football Cardinals don't open their training camp until next Monday, but they have already totaled up their season ticket sales.

The figure comes to 41,542-an increase of 814 over last year's season ticket sales and another record high.

Cardinal vice-president Bill Bidwill said the sales are "a wonderful vote of confidence to football and to the Cardinals from St. Louis fans."

Reds Sink Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Clay Carroll's fast ball put him in trouble Friday night, so the square-jawed reliever went back to work with a sinker in recording his 20th save.

"That 20th save came hard," said the 31-year-old Cincinnati Reds right-hander, who choked off a budding St. Louis Cardinals rally in a 6-3 win.

"I didn't feel like I had very much out there," he added, "but I was lucky enough to get the ball down. This kind of humidity wilts you."

Carroll, appearing in his 35th game, was auspicious against the first and final batter he faced in relief of Ross Grimsley, 7-3, who pitched the first 7 1-3 innings.

Lou Brock and Matty Alou had worked singles off Grimsley around a force play in the eighth when the 6-foot-1 Carroll came on and induced Joe Torre to ground into a double play with his first pitch.

That preserved a 4-2 lead the Reds expanded to 6-2 in the ninth before Clay walked Donn Clendenon and Ed Crosby singled pinch-runner Bernie Carbo to third with one out in the Cards' last half-inning.

Pinch-hitter Jose Cruz then drove a sacrifice fly to center field to make it 6-3 and pinchhitter Ted Sizemore hit another fast ball into left field.

With runners on first and third and the game in the balance, Carroll served up a sinker to Brock, who slapped it to second baseman Joe Morgan's right for a force at second.

"It kind of scared me because, he (Brock) is the type of hitter who can tie it up," said Carroll. "I was lucky to get the sinker where I wanted it."

The run off Carroll, who carried an earned run average of 1.43 into the appearance, was only the second in his last 31 innings.

"I've just been lucky," he insisted, however. "The guys have been playing good ball behind me and we've had good hitting."

Cincinnati's victory, boosting its National League West Division lead to 2 1/2 games over the Houston Astros, was the Reds' eighth in 10 games against the Cards.

Most of the damage was inflicted against Cards starter Rick Wise, 9-9, who left trailing 4-0 after surrendering five hits and walking three in the first 1 1-3 innings.

SEMO Stars Romp

Capitalizing on an error with one out in the fifth frame, five walks and four big hits in the same inning, the SeMo- All Stars broke away from a 1-0 deficit and rolled to a decisive 11-1 lead over the Sikeston Senior Babe Ruth All- Stars in Friday night's first game in the best of three playoff for the District 3 Championship.

The visiting SeMo stars added five runs in the next frame and captured a 16-1 win in their first step toward a ticket into the state playoff slated July 19-22 at Jefferson City.

The All-Star unit, comprised of players from Lilbourn, New Madrid, East Prairie and Bertrand, found itself trailing early in the game as the Sikeston stars scored a quick run in the first inning. Greg Colwick put the Sikeston stars on the scoreboard in the opening frame, as teammate Phil Puckett followed Colwick's leadoff single with the Sikeston All- Stars' only extra- base hit of the evening, a triple.

Lilbourn's Pat McClarty went the distance for the SeMo Stars, checking the Sikeston lineup on a three-hitter. After getting out of the first inning with only one run, McClarty and his team's tight defense held Sikeston to only four base- runners through the remaining six innings.

The SeMo All- Stars pounded three Sikeston pitchers for 13 hits. SeMo third baseman Mitch Allen paced the winners at the plate with three hits, one single and two doubles, one of which came in his team's 11-run fifth frame. McClarty aided his own cause by collecting two hits — a fifth-inning triple and a sixth-inning single. Lilbourn's Greg Weeks picked up two singles.

Mike Mitchell opened on the mound for the Sikeston All- Stars and gave way to relief work from Richard Blankenship and Rick LaPlant late in the game. Mitchell received the loss.

Tonight the teams square off in the second of three possible matches to decide the District 3 winner and representative in the state tournament. Game time tonight is 8 p.m. The Sikeston Stars must win to stay in the running. A win for the Sikeston crew would throw the series into a 2 p.m. Sunday tie- breaker. Another Sikeston loss would wrap up the district title for the SeMo Stars.

Patterson-Ali Fight Aug. 28

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson can't wait to grow older. In fact, the former twotime world heavyweight boxing champion feels nothing improves him like age.

"I'm hoping to still be fighting when I'm 38 or 39 so I will be twice as good. I know by then my reflexes will be sharper," the 37-year-old Patterson said Friday night after he pounded Pedro Agosto almost at will and halted the lumbering Puerto Rican after six rounds.

A victory over Agosto, 196 pounds, in the scheduled 10-round bout paved the way for Patterson to fight Muhammad Ali Aug. 28 at Madison Square Garden. A defeat would have cancelled the match. Ali fights Al "Blue" Lewis of Detroit in Dublin, Ireland next Wednesday.

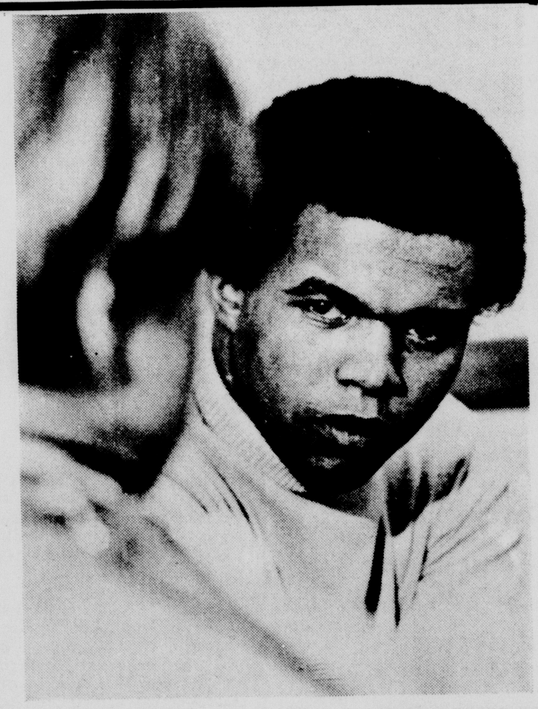

"I'm not making any prediction about my fight with Clay Ali," said Patterson, who hiked his record to 55-7-1 with 40 knockouts. "I just think it'll be a good fight."

He said he would have preferred to wait until next year to meet Ali, who stopped him in a title bout in 1965, but decided to take the fight now "because I may not get another chance. I'm getting sharper with each fight and am gaining confidence."

After defeating Oscar Bonavena earlier this year, Patterson said he didn't feel ready to fight heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, but Friday said he would meet the rugged titleholder at any time.

"I'm ready for Frazier now. I'd rather wait a year, although that doesn't mean I'm not confident. If offered a title shot now I'd take it. I might never get another chance."

Gale Sayers' Comeback Try: Determination, No Desperation

GALE SAYERS—who in addition to being a television personality, stock broker and pro football star is a deputy sheriff—counsels a recent arrival at a youth detention home in Chicago.

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

CHICAGO — (NEA) — Two or three times a day, seven days a week since he tossed his cane away three months ago, Gale Sayers works out in Soldier Field here. He soon will know whether this effort has been futile, whether he is finished as a football player.

He was the most explosive, electric runner in the game for five seasons. But he has played only four games in the last two years, and has undergone three knee operations (the last one last fall).

He goes to summer camp with the Chicago Bears on July 13. In the two weeks following he expects to discover whether he has another season or two left in his legs.

If he does, fine. If he doesn't, spill no tears for Gale Sayers.

"That's what's so good," says Sayers. "I don't have the terrific burden of having to make good because I have nothing else. I'm financially set right now. I don't need football, but I want it."

Sayers sat on the edge of his seat (he is forever the "man in motion," full of energy, always on the edge of his seat) in his office at WCIU-TV here. He wore a light blue polo shirt which accentuated his tawny muscles, natty blue knit slacks and incongruous leather sneakers with red stripes.

He threw back his head in easy laughter when it was observed that he had not gone to pot.

"No," he said. "I'm 201. That's just about my playing weight. But I'm tired from my workout schedule. I need a rest bad. But I can't take one. So I've got to take one-minute vacations. You know, take a quick daydream that I'm on a beach in Hawaii."

He walks without any apparent limp. He feels now that he can come back as an effective runner—depending on the type of offensive line the Bears will have. ("But I'll never be the same —not after seven years and three operations.") He knows he will experience pain and he says he is not timid about being hit ("I'm a football player," he says. "If you're scared, get out of it"). And yet there is a ray of doubt where once there was none. Sayers is not sure that he "wants it bad enough," at age 28 and after half a decade of high accomplishment.

"I'll see," he says. "I'm trying it this one more time because I don't want to look back when I'm 50 and wonder if I could've played one or two more years. One other reason. I love the game."

Sayers has been careful with his money. He says with pride that if he liquidated everything he has he would wind up with about three-quarters of all the money he has earned from pro football. "Not many athletes can say something like that," said Sayers.

"You know, some blacks misuse the word 'brother,'" said Sayers. "They think all white men are trying to give them the shaft. That's not true. My high school coach, my college coach, George Halas and Sam Lizzo (a Chicago banker) all helped me straight."

Sayers accepted counseling on his decision to become a stock broker a few years ago. He took a six-month apprenticeship with a top national firm; he said he worked harder to obtain a broker's license than anything else he has ever done. There had been an added pressure on him to pass the test; he would become the company's first black broker.

"I was willing to work at it," said Sayers. "Most athletes are spoiled. They all want to start in as vice-presidents. If not, they don't work in off-season. That's why a lot of 'em are broke. No one wants to start at the bottom."

Now, Sayers is developing his television technique. He is a co-host of a talk show on WCIU, a small UHF station in Chicago; he has taken a six-month leave of absence from his brokerage firm. This is "the bottom," and Sayers hopes to rise to a network station in a few years. The show is called "Hamarabee 26." Hamarabi is Swahili for "togetherness."

Sayers has become a national symbol of togetherness. It was his relationship with Brian Piccolo—teammate, road roommate and friend who died of cancer in 1970—that inspired the hit TV drama, "Brian's Song." The story also propelled Sayers' autobiography, "I Am Third," into a top seller.

"I didn't like a part of the movie because it made too much of the black-white thing," said Sayers. "We were just two cats cuttin' up. Could've been two white guys or two niggers. But Pick was just good folks."

Sayers thought a moment. "Even if I'm finished as a football player now, I have no regrets," he said. "How could I?"

American Frontrunners Triumph

In Friday night's only action in Sikeston Little League play, the American League Western Division front runners picked up victories and remained one full game apart in the standings.

First National Bank picked up its 10th win in 11 outings with a 31-0 blasting of Flower Basket in the nightcap at Farris Field. It was the Flower Basket's second game in two days in which the opposition scored 31 runs. Caproco tagged Flower Basket with a 31-1 loss Thursday night.

In Friday's first game, Police (9-2), trailing First National in the standings, added another decision with its 10-2 triumph over Bridger.

First National Bank rolled to its shutout win over Flower Basket behind a 16-hit barrage. Longstreet and Nelson paced the Bankers at the plate with each blasting four hits and combining for nine runs in 11 trips to the plate. Winning pitcher Mayfield added three hits and scored five runs en route to the decision.

Police broke a 2-2 deadlock in the second inning by scoring one run for the go-ahead signal. Four additional runs in the third frame gave the second place Police squad a five-run margin.

Ziegler and Grojean paced the Police attack with a double and a triple each. Ziegler went four for four at the plate while Grojean collected two hits and scored four runs in the squad's 10-hit lineup.

Blanton worked the mound for the winners, giving up three hits — two in the first inning scored the only Bridger runs.

Mets And Pirates On East Winning Trail

By KEN RAPPORPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dave Schneck was the 669th player chosen by the New York Mets in the 1968 free agent draft.

He later was one of thousands who went to war in Viet Nam in 1969.

But today he's not just another number with Yogi Berra.

"He really picked us up at a time when we needed a lift," said the New York manager after Schneck's first major league hit—a two-run homer—helped the Mets beat San Diego 3-2 Friday night.

The Mets' victory, also fashioned on Tom Seaver's five-hitter, kept them in pursuit of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East race.

The Pirates retained their three-game edge after beating the Houston Astros 5-2.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Atlanta Braves 9-8; the Cincinnati Reds turned back the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3; the San Francisco Giants walloped the Philadelphia Phillies 8-1 and the Montreal Expos blasted the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-1.

In the American League, the Oakland A's took a dobuleheader from the New York Yankees 9-3 and 1-0; the Baltimore Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox twice, 7-4 and 3-0; the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the California Angels 7-3; the Minnesota Twins nipped the Boston Red Sox 7-6; the Celveland Indians stopped the Texas Rangers 2-0 in 14 innings and the Kansas City Royals nipped the Detroit Tigers.

Nelson Briles fired a four-hitter and Gene Alley drove ina pair of runs with a double and triple to boost Pittsburgh over Houston. Briles surrended the Astro runs in the sixth on a walk and Lee May's 19th home run.

Pinch-hitter Paul Popovich capped a three-run rally in the ninth inning with a run-scoring single, leading Chicago over Atlanta in a game studded with home runs. The Cubs hit four and the Braves three, two by Mike Lum.

Pete Rose's two-run single capped a three-run second inning off Rick Wise that carried Cincinnati over St. Louis. The rally gave the Reds an early 4-0 lead and their eventual winning runs against the Cardinals.

Bobby Bonds blasted a home run, triple and two singles to lead San Francisco to an easy victory over Philadelphia. Bonds scored three runs and drove in two to make it a cinch for Juan Marichal to pick up his second straight victory and fourth of the campaign. The Giants' ace, off to the worst start of his career, has lost 10 games so far.

Baylor Moore earned his first major league victory, hurling a five-hitter, and Ron Fairly drove in four runs as Montreal came up with a club record 17 hits enroute to victory over Los Angeles.

Moore, who had lost three straight decisions this season, including one to Los Angeles, retired the first 15 Dodgers and breezed behind the Expos' highest-ever hit total. Fairly singled home two runs in the fifth, doubled in one in the seventh and singled home another in the ninth.

Adventure

THE LAST PLACE GOD MADE. By Jack Higgins. Holt, Rinehart and Winston. $5.95.

For all its natural beauty, diamonds, rubber . . . it takes boldness, recklessness or a deep faith in God to meet the challenge of the treacherous back country of Brazil.

Jack Higgins has developed the plot of this novel into a marvelous adventure story filled with breathtaking excitement.

Neil Mallory, young and fearless, chose a pilot's job in the wilds of South America over a partnership in his father's law firm in England.

Fate introduces him to Sam Hannah, a World War I ace pilot, who nourishes his ego on the glory of his past. Sam is a power figure, highly respected by people in the desolate communities in South America; behind the mask is a desperate man of little principle. The two become partners, flying mail and freight around the Rio das Mortes, or the River of Death. They are good pilots, using patched-up war relics for jobs that few men will accept. A forced landing will expose them to infestations of the jungle and Huna savages with six-foot spears.

A spicy love triangle plays an essential part in this adventure novel. Action stirs when these men escort a nun and an actress into the jungle to find a couple of nuns believed to be captives of the cruel Huna Indians.

Higgins describes the loveliness of the country and the life of deprived people. Neil says maybe the Hunas, meaning enemy of all men, have reason to defend their land as they do. "They were there first."

Talk of the propelled machines of that era is a fascinating and informative part of the story. A tiny bit of humor enters near the very end, then it bursts again into excitement and fast-moving action.

Higgins has written many adventure stories. "The Violent Enemy" and other books have been discovered by the film industry. This story, too, seems to have all the necessary ingredients to make an interesting film.

On this date:

In 1606, the Dutch painter Rembrandt was born.

In 1789, King Louis XVI of France was awakened at at 2 a.m. and told his authority had collapsed with the fall of the Bastille.

In 1870, the last of the Confederate states, Georgia, was readmitted to the Union.

In 1918, in World War I, American troops attacked German positions at Chateau-Thierry in France.

In 1948, a Democratic national convention in Philadelphia nominated President Harry Truman as the party's candidate for a second term.

In 1958, President Dwight Eisenhower ordered 3,500 Marines to Lebanon during a Middle East crisis.

Ten years ago: The Committee for Economic Development proposed a "massive adjustment" of agriculture, including the reduction of the farm labor force by two million workers.

Five years ago: More than 30,000 workers walked out of the nation's copper refineries in a contract dispute.

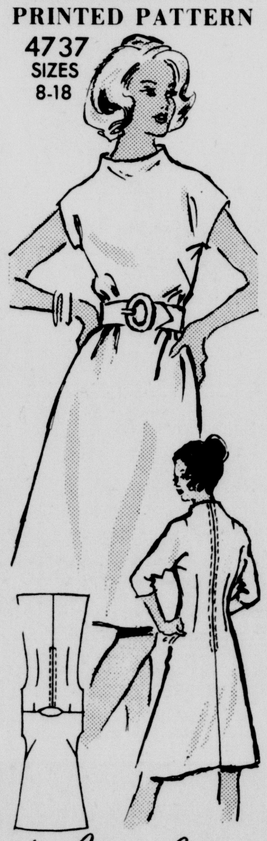

One year ago: President Nixon announced he would visit Communist China to seek what he called a "normalization of relations."

Today's birthday: Former UN official Carl Van Horn is 69.

Chaffee To Vote On Park Tax Hike

CHAFFEE — A proposal to raise Chaffee's city park tax levy from 20 cents to 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation on real and personal property will appear on thy Aug. 8 ballot here.

The City Council passed an ordinance authorizing submission of the proposal. Increased funds would be used to maintain City Park, to build other park areas and to maintain the Little League program and the city swimming pool.

Mrs. Betty Uhr, park board treasurer, said the current tax levy netted only $5,100 during the past fiscal year.

Chaffee residents whose homes are equipped with sump pumps got a small financial break from the council. A provision that would have charged these residents 50 cents more on monthly sewer bills was stricken.

Raymond Rowell, superintendent of public works, conducted a survey of the north half of Chaffee to determine the number of sump pumps in use. He and Mayor Sally Wehmeyer said numerous complaints had been received about the extra charge. Councilman Joe Richbourg recommended the provision be removed from the new sewer ordinance.

City Engineer C. R. Trotter reported 70 per cent of work on the new city water line has been completed and 20 per cent of the work on the new water plant is finished.

Work on the plant has been slowed, he said, because of failure to receive a pmup and other needed parts. A contractors' bill for the past month — $15,798.68 for sewer line work and $16,397.36 for water plant and line — was submitted.

In other business, plans of T. E. Burks to construct a 12-unit apartment building on Davidson avenue were accepted and the council decided to advertise for bids on a sewage treatment plant. Bids will be opened Aug. 7.

Cape C Of C Opposes Transportation Bond

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, went on record as opposing the proposed $730 million mass transit bond issue, charging it would divert approximately $255 million from state highways.

Clarence Lee Shirrell, chamber president, said the board of directors agreed with a report of the chamber's highway and transportation committee which pointed out that too much of the proposed money would be used on projects other than upgrading and expanding state highways.

A. C. (Doc) Brase, chairman of the committee, said only the larger cities in Missouri would benefit by getting airports, rapid transit and bus systems, with Kansas City and St. Louis benefiting the most.

The bond issue is expected to appear on the November general election ballot.

Brase said the bonds would not be retired until the year 2007, and by then it would have cost Missouri taxpayers $1,204,500,000 above the original $730 million.

Proponents say it would still take only a two- cent gas tax increase to fund the bond issue, Brase pointed out, the same amount as was proposed in the 1970 referendum calling for $450 million of bonds to provide a state inter- regional highway system.

"We don't see how this is possible," he said. "Someone has made a mistake."

He added it may take more than the $180 million earmarked for rapid transit systems in St. Louis and Kansas City and questioned where that additional amount would come from.

Missouri voters in 1928, 1945, 1962 and 1970 turned down similar issues that would have diverted funds from the state's highway system. The Missouri Constitution provides protection against such diversion.

As proposed, $475 million would go toward highways; $120 million for St. Louis rapid transit systems and $60 million for Kansas City rapid transit; $15 million for a St. Louis regional airport and $7.5 million for a regional airport in Kansas City; $7.5 million for other airports; $15 million for city bus systems in St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Columbia, Jefferson City and Springfield, and $30 million for county bridges.

Springfield Chamber of Commerce two months ago voted to oppose the referendum.

Missouri Tops In Placing Vets Into Health Careers

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Missouri has placed a higher percentage of veterans into health careers and health education programs than any other state in the nation, according to the national headquarters of the Military Experience Directed Into Health Careers (MEDIHC) Program.

University of Missouri Director of Intercampus Instruction, Lynn Martin, is coordinator for the Missouri MEDIHC Program. According to Alice Frazer, national MEDIHC coordinator, Dr. Martin has succeeded in placing almost nine out of every 10 veterans who have applied for positions in the health field.

The program was funded in 1971 by the Department of Defense and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. During the year, Dr. Martin has placed 222 of 253 applying veterans.

The figures released by the national MEDIHC headquarters show Oklahoma second with 80 per cent of its applicant veterans placed and California third with 67 per cent. Only six states, including Missouri, placed more than 50 per cent.

According to Dr. Martin, "The number of veterans is increasing with the winding down of the Vietnam War and they are finding it difficult to get positions in a tightening job market. At the sametime the health field desperately needs people qualified to perform many health- related services. Through MEDIHC we are able to use, rather than waste, the valuable medical training many veterans received while in the armed services."

Although MEDIHC coordinators step out of the picture once the veteran and the agency are in contact, Dr. Martin said that the jobs these men and women are getting are attractive in terms of salary, working conditions and advancement. "Those who start out in low- level positions and who prove to be dependable move up very rapidly. Also, many find opportunities to get further training while they continue to work part time."

After visiting many hospitals in Missouri, Dr. Martin said he has been made aware of just how severe the sortage of personnel to serve our health needs really is, especially in rural areas.

"MEDIHC is performing a real service to the people of Missouri by furnishing veterans to health agencies in our rural communities and in innner-city areas," he said. "These men and women return from the service with a desire to do something for humanity. Many of them state preferences on their applications for areas of the state which other people often shun."

Dr. Martin said that regardless of where they are placed, he has found without exception that veterans are received warmly by both hospital administrators and by the communities. "For one thing, they do a good job. They are not only already trained, but their experience in the service helps them cope with emergency situations."

Hospitals and health agencies have indicated that their personnel turnover has slowed down since they have started hiring veterans Few leave their jobs except to receive further training, according to Dr. Martin.

MEDIHC has not only helped veterans get jobs which pay well and are personally fulfilling, but as one veteran put it in a letter to Dr. Martin, "It has made me realize that the time I spent in the service was not wasted."

Because of the success of the Missouri program, HEW and DOD have allocated funds to expand the program and staff at the University of Missouri. "Recently we were asked to host a regional meeting of MEDIHC coordinators," says Dr. Martin, "and we have also received funds to make a film about our program to be used nation-wide to informorm veterans about the program and to encourage medical agencies to participate."

application."

The application, in Fulton County Superior Court in Atlanta, was for taking the Georgia bar exam. He passed it in June of 1964 and was sworn in as a lawyer in August of 1964.

The newspaper quoted Richard Hicks, an assistant district attorney for Fulton County, Ga., as saying "it certainly is" a felony to give false residency information to obtain a Georgia law license.

The residency requirement in the Missouri Constitution has prevented Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth from running for the Republican nomination for governor this year. Danforth says he voted in 1965 in New York State.

Bond served as assistant attorney general under -Danforth before his election- as auditor.

Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom Is Number One

Omaha, Nebr., July 3--MUTUAL OF OMAHA'S WILD KINGDOM, which is completing its first season as a syndicated television series, has gained the number one spot in terms of viewing audiences of syndicated shows, according to an announcement made today by Mutual officials.

Based on the analysis of ratings of the 271 syndicated shows compiled by the American Research Bureau in its latest 1972 sweep, MUTUAL OF OMAHA'S WILD KINGDOM recorded the largest number of viewers with over 27 million people.

The popular, all-family program was an NBC regular prior to the 1971-72 season when it joined the ranks of syndicated programs. The series has won four Emmy Awards and was one of only six syndicated programs to be nominated this season for the Award.

According to Mutual of Omaha, the series will begin a second season this fall as a syndicated series, eleventh on network television, with a viewing audience expected to be larger than last season. As of today, 213 markets have been cleared for the 1972-73 season, including the five NBC O&O stations. New stations in some markets, plus improved time slots, will provide a potential increase in viewing audience of nearly a million viewers.

While a majority of television stations cleared for the new season remain NBC affiliates, the show will also be carried by some CBS and ABC stations, as well as a few independents.

World-famed zoologist, Marlin Perkins, who has hosted the program since its inception, will continue in this role. MUTUAL OF OMAHA'S WILD KINGDOM will continue to emphasize ecology and wildlife conservation.

What You Want To Know

TV MAILBAG
By Steven H. Scheuer

Q. Please settle a bet between my brother and me. I say that Carroll O'Connor, who plays Archie Bunker in "All in the Family," played the part of the truck driver whose van struck down Kirk Douglas in the movie, "Lonely Are the Brave," which was on TV recently. My brother says it was another actor. Who wins?-D.F., Memphis, Tenn.

A. You win...the character actor who played the small but pivotal role of the truck driver destined to run Kirk Douglas down in the fine film drama was none other than Carroll O'Connor, the current star of "All in the Family."

Q. I think it's a pity that Doris Day and Shirley Jones have to be stuck in such series as the two they're in. These two marvelous actresses can really sing and here they are playing silly women in typical TV situations. I think they should both have musical shows. Are they happy doing what they are doing?- I.D., Fort Wayne, Ind.

A. Both stars are content and are making a lot of money. Their TV series are hits. If they starred in strictly musical variety shows, they may have flopped..but the two singing actresses haven't given up singing. Doris will probably make an appearance on a variety show or TV special sometime in the future and the same goes for Miss Jones, who, as you know, does a good job with the singing she does do on the show.

Q. I had the great fortune of seeing James Darren in "The Star-Spangled Girl" on stage this past summer, and I thought he was wonderful. What was the name of his TV series of a few years back?-K.L., Paterson, N.J.

A. James Darren co-starred with Robert Colbert in "Time Tunnel," which can still be seen in some areas via syndication.

Q. Is Lee Majors married to a young actress who appears as a regular in one of the TV series? I was told by a girl friend that this was so. - L.D.E., Greenfield, Mass.

A. Lee Majors is a foot-loose and fancy free bachelor at present.

Q. I have had a crush on Bobby Sherman since I was 14—that was four years ago—and I still dig the guy. He's marvelous in his new series, "Getting Together,"and I was very unhappy to read that it wasn't doing very well in the ratings. Come on, Bobby Sherman fans, tune in his new series so that it could turn into a great big hit.—M.C., Wichita, Kans.

Q. I read in the papers that Bobby Sherman's new series wasn't rating very high on the charts, and I think it's unfortunate. I think I know why the show wasn't a big rater. When the parents read about a show starring a teen idol like Bobby Sherman, they automatically think it's designed for only young viewers. I think if they watched it once, they'd see it was a good situation comedy for the whole family. With all the violence on TV this year, I should think there would be an audience for a good, well-written comedy show.—P.S., Feura Bush, N.Y.

A. The Bobby Sherman fans have certainly rallied to the defense of their hero. If all of the fans who have made his recordings such big sellers tune in to his new series, the show will just have to do better in the next ratings period. Time will tell.

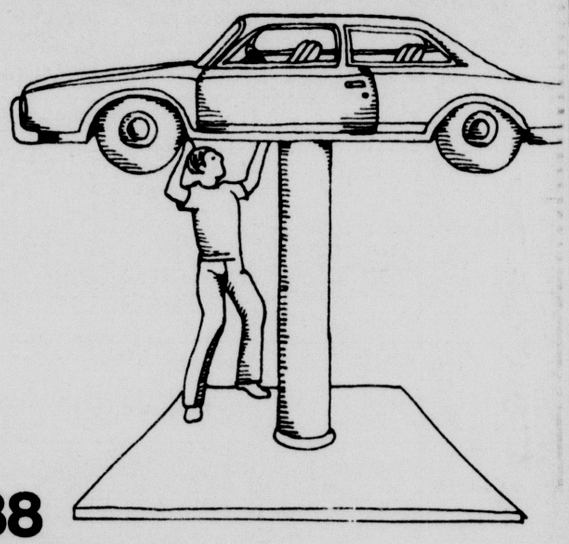

Q. I used to watch Burt Reynolds in "Dan August" every week and I miss not seeing him in anything. What is he doing besides the movies you mentioned in another column?—M.R., Bangor, Me.

A. Burt Reynolds has taken over for Johnny Carson on "The Tonight Show" a few times and he is scheduled to do so again in the near future.

Q. Whatever happened to Ava Gardner? She's so beautiful in her old films on TV. It's been some years since she made her last film, and I know she doesn't do TV or, at least, she hasn't so far.—M.L., Albany, N.Y.

A. Ava Gardner has recently been set by director John Huston to play actress Lily Langtry in a forthcoming film about Judge Roy Bean, a western figure to be played by Paul Newman.

Recipe Specialities

Pack the picnic cooler with sandwiches made from skinless frankfurters. Grind together ½ pounds franks, ½ a small onion and 1 stalk celery. Blend in ¼ cup sweet pickle juice and a few drops of Tabasco.

Or pack these crowd pleasurers: Mix together ½ cup minced skinless frankfurters (they're fully cooked right from the package), a 3-ounce package cream cheese and 2 tablespoons thawed frozen pineapple juice concentrate. (Add the rest of the concentrate. to lemonade for anew punch.

For the grill, try 6 skinless frankfurters encased in a mixture of 1 pound ground beef, 1 slightly beaten egg, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce and 3/4 teaspoon seasoned salt. Grill over hot coals about 12 minutes and serve in hot dog buns with relish and mustard. These will serve 6 people.

No barbecue season will be complete without barbecued bologna. Scored a 3-to-4 pound chunk of bologna about ¼-inch deep, as for ham. Anchor on spit and attach to grill. Baste with a mixtue of½ cup red current jelly, 2 tablespoons prepared hot mustard and ¼ teaspoon cloves. Cook about 45 minutes until well-glazed and hot. Slice to make 10 to 12 servings. (Use the leftovers for sandwiches.)

For a kabob idea, wrap skinless frankfurter chunks with partially cooked bacon and alternate on a skewer with folded bologna slices and dill pickles chunks. Turn often until browned and bacon is cooked.

For safe picnicing and camping, remember to refrigerate all sausage except for dry sausage (salami) which may be kept whole indefinitely in a cool place. Once the casing is opened, however, refrigerate dry sausage also, recommend food technologists from Union Carbide.

Democrats Name First Woman Party Chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Democratic national chairman is Jean Miles Westwood, a 48-year-old grandmother from West Jordan, Utah, and the first woman to head a major political party.

Mrs. Westwood, a principal adviser to Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern, replaces Lawrence F. O'Brien. Sen. McGovern's selection of Mrs. Westwood was unanimously ratified by the Democratic National Committee Friday in Miami Beach, Fla.

The committee, in another precedent-setting move, selected Basil Paterson of Harlem, N.Y., as vice chairman. Paterson, 45, a former state senator, is the first black to be picked for such a top post in a national party.

McGovern's choice for the vice-chairmanship was Pierre Salinger, a campaign adviser and former White House press secretary, who withdrew from contention after black Democrats from Mississippi nominated Paterson.

While originally endorsing Salinger, McGovern said after Paterson was nominated that either man would be acceptable to him.

O'Brien, who held the chairmanship for 2 1/2 years, had led the presidential campaigns of Lyndon B Johnson in 1964 and Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968. He was postmaster general under Johnson after being in charge of congressional liaison during the John F. Kennedy administration.

McGovern said he tried to persuade O'Brien to remain on the job but that O'Brien refused because of personal reasons. "I respect his wishes," McGovern said, "I regret it but I respect it."

But other sources said O'Brien and McGovern met privately, and that O'Brien said at one point that he would reconsider the decision to leave the post. These sources added that McGovern replied he would have to further consider, and O'Brien then said he would revert to his original position and leave the chairmanship.

Mrs. Westwood's active political work began in 1954 when she became a voter district vice chairman. She made an unsuccessful bid in 1964 to become national committeewoman from Utah. She was appointed to the position in 1968 and later ,as elected to a full term.

Mrs. Westwood served as cochairman of McGovern's presidential campaign organization.

Paterson was the first black to run for statewide office in New York when in 1970 he was the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor. Paterson is a new member of the Democratic National Committee.

State Auditor Kit Bond Faces Legal Challenge

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor Christopher "Kt" Bond faced a challenge today as to whether he may be holding his office illegally under the Missouri Constitution because he lived in other states from 1963-68.

Also, according to the Constitution, there may be a question as to whether he is eligible to run for governor. He is a candidate for the Republican nomination for that race.

The governor and auditor candidates must have lived in the state for a full 10 years before the election, the Constitution says.

Bond, en route to Kansas City Friday night, told The Associated Press that he lived from 1965-68 in Washington, D.C., where he was a lawyere with the firm of Covington and Brundage.

Bond also confirmed a copyright article by the Jefferson City Post-Tribune that he lived in Atlanta, Ga., from July 1, 1963, to August of 1964, when he was sworn in as a lawyer there.

From July, 1963, to June, 1964, Bon d was a law clerk for the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

Section 3 of Article 4 of the state Constititution says a governor must be "a resident of this state at least 10 years next before election."

Section 13 of the same article says "The state auditor shall have the same qualifications as the governor."

Bond's aides said they interpreted the Constitution to mean "voting reisency."

There was no indication any legal action was planned.

Bond, 33, said he never has voted outside the state.

The issue came up two years ago when he ran for auditor, he said.

"I have always maintained my voting residency in Mexico, Mo., and I have never voted elsewhere," Bond said.

"Although I was physically in Georgia," he said, "I ne er intended to make that my permanent home or my voting residence, which I demonstrated by working and voting in the elections in Missouri in 1964."

"This is a desperate effort on the part of Democratic politicians to save one party rule in Missouri," Bond said.

"The fact that this was held up for 18 months after I was sworn in as auditor is an indication of the lengths the Democratic machine in Jefferson City will go to prevent change in Missouri government. This is the old politics at its worst."

The Post-Tribune, which last week endorsed one of Bond's opponents, Gene McNary, for the GOP nomination, reproduced documents showing that Bond signed a statement in 1964 saying he had been for six months "a bona fide resident and citizen of Georgia at the time of

Two Held In Copper Thefts

CHARLESTON — Larry Gale Hester, 27, and John Bryant Short, 33, both of Evansville, Ind., are being held in Mississippi County jail for investigation of stealing an esimated $30,000 to $50,000 worth of copper tubing, wiring and other merchandise from Guy Grey Company in Paducah, Ky.

The men were arrested Friday afternoon at the Bertrand interchange of Interstate 57 by Highway Patrolman Robert Edelman and Sheriff W. J. (Pedro) Simmons.

According to Simmons, two men parked a rental truck which had two flat tires in the yard of the Charles Parr home near Bertrand about 7 a.m. Friday. The men told Parr they would return for the truck shortly.

When they did not return, Parr went to a rental truck business in Sikeston and and asked when the men would return for the truck. The Sikeston business knew nothing about the truck, but when they investigated, copper was found in the truck and authorities were called.

A white Oldsmobile with Indiana license plates was observed going east on Interstate 57 by Patrolman Edelman. The car turned off at the Bertrand interchange and drove toward the Parr home. When they reached the Parr driveway, the men reportedly backed out when they observed the patrol car approaching. Edelman and Simmons arrested the pair as they reached the interchange again.

The duo is being held pending warrants for investigation of stealing from McCracken County, Ky., authorities.

The theft took place sometime between Monday and Friday while Poole was in Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Three Killed In SeMo Accidents

Three were killed in separate traffic accidents in Southeast Missouri late Friday and early today, according to reports by the highway patrol.

Fifteen-year -old Cecil Hicks of Sikeston Route Four was dead on arrival at Missouri Delta Community Hospital Friday night after being struck by a car at 9:40 p.m. while riding a bicycle on a New Madrid County road three miles south of Morehouse. Driver of the car was Donald Campbell, 21, of Canalou. Passengers in the Campbell car who received minor injuries were Randy Haley, 22, and Gloria Flowers, 22, both of Morehouse. They were treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital and released.

According to the patrol, Campbell could not avoid hitting the Hicks youth. No charges were filed and there will be no inquest.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hicks of Sikeston Route Four.

The body is at Watkins and Sons Funeral Home in Morehouse.

John D. Everts, 40, of Granite City, Ill., was killed in a one-car crash west of Perryville in Perry County Friday at 2 p.m. Everts' two children, Jennifer and John D., Jr., were seriously injured in the crash and are in Perry County Hospital in Perryville.

Driver of the pickup truck was Charles Joe Foreman, 28, also of St. Louis, and passengers in the truck were Artis Louise Jones, 44, and Silas McRay Hitchens, both of St. Louis. All were injured and taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Harold Clayton Taylor, 44, of Beech Grove, Ark., was driving the tractor-trailer rig and was not injured.

Eagleton Says Demos Will Push Registration

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton says the first order of business in the 1972 Democratic presidential camapign is a massive voter registration effort.

"It's going to take enthusiasm," the vice presidential nominee told the cheering airport crowd as he returned to his home state Friday evening from Miami Beach and the party's national convention.

But if the young and blacks and other elements in society that are now under registered in places like Kansas City and Eagleton's home town of St. Louis can be brought into a full role in the election, Eagleton said, "there's no doubt in my mind that Sen. George McGovern will be in the White House."

Some 400 supporters turned out at K nsas City Municipal Airport to welcome Eagleton's flight from Miami less than 24 hours after the 42-year-old freshman senator was nominated as McGovern's running mate.

Eagleton addressed the gathering for several minutes, talked with newsmen and then visited with a few friends at a private home here for a few hours before retiring early for what he readily conceded was a much-needed rest.

He had a speaking engagement today before the National Audio-Visual Association at Kansas City's Hotel Muehlebach.

He planned to fly to Washington immediately afterward.

Eagleton told newsmen at the airport he was "between euphoria and terribly tired. I never expected to be part of the ticket. I'm thrilled and honored."

The senator acknowledged such forces as labor and the old-line Democrats were vital in the campaign. He said he expected eventual strong support from labor.

"The Democratic ticket is perhaps not all some labor leaders wanted it to be," he said, but added he felt the comparison between the Republican and Democratic slates would prompt strong support forh his party's nominee.

Of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri, who had been cool to McGovern, Eagleton said "He has assured me that he will work assiduously for this ticket."

Final I-55 Link Poured In Area

FRUITLAND — The last section of Interstate 55 between St. Louis and Hayti was poured this week, according to Bill Shaw, Missouri State Highsay Department district 10 engineer.

The 29- mile section between Fruitland and Brewer should be ready for traffic in the fall. A considerable amount of work remains to be done, according to Shaw, including paving the entry and exit ramps, shoulder work, erosion control and installation of guard rails and signs.

The latest stretch of concrete was poured 11 years and three months after the first section of road was laid.

The highway from St. Louis to Memphis is scheduled to be completed in its entirety in the fall of 1973. Besides the Fruitland to Brewer section, only a 14-mile stretch between Hayti and two miless north of the Arkansas state line remains to be completed.

Morley To Conduct Attitude Survey

MORLEY — Residents will soon have an opportunity to tell what is right or wrong in the community through a "community attitude survey," according to an announcement made by the Morley Community Betterment Club.

Mrs. Gene Holland, survey chairman, said a questionnaire covering nearly every phase of the community, including the business and residential areas, recreation and community services, will be circulated to residents soon.

The object of the survey is to find out exactly where the community is doing a good job and where it is falling down.

The survey is the first step in a community betterment program in which the Rotary Club and the Women's Federated Club will work with the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development.

The betterment program will cover every phase of the community — business, agriculture, education, beautification and many others.

Details of the survey will be announced later.

CONSCIENTIOUS POLICEWORK FRUSTRATED

The New York City Police Department made a random study of 136 cases of felony arrests for criminal possession of hand guns. If the arrested parties had been convicted and sentenced to maximum terms, they could have been given a total of 952 years in prison.

Unfortunately for the law-abiding public not one was convicted of the original felony charge. They were either dismissed or reduced to lesser charges. The 136 criminals served a total of five years and four months, or about one month per offense.

Other crime statistics prove that the police are doing their part in catching criminals. In 1960, New York City police made 35,629 felony arrests. In 1971, they made 94,042. That is an increase of 165 per cent.

But what happened after the police did their part in preserving law and order? Only 552 of the 94,000 went to trial. The others escaped justice the same way the hand-gun felons did — dismissal, charge reduction and plea bargaining.

Plea bargaining is an agreement by the accused to plead guilty to a lesser charge if the felony is reduced to that. Thus, vandalism becomes mere mischief. Plea bargaining enables a judge to clear his docket without a trial and puts the criminal back on the street. The process is usually repeated before very long.

This revolving door justice is hurting police and civilian morale. Witnesses do not want to leave work to testify against someone who will be free again soon. Policemen, criticized from all sides, begin to doubt whether diligent work is worth the effort.

The only people who like permissive justice, understanding courts and sympathetic newsmen are the criminals. Every crook likes a license to steal.

"HE. D TAX"
HEAL \CHES

Of ll the many forms of federal, state and local taxatior the property tax has long been regarded as the least popular. But the "head taxes" now being collected at a growing number of municipal airports may soon lay claim to that title. The usual practice is to collect a $1 fee from each emplaning passenger and to use the revenue for airport maintenance. Philadelphia, however, levies a $2 tax on both arriving and departing air passengers and puts the proceeds in its general revenue fund. A court hearing on the legality of the Philadelphis tax is scheduled for Tuesday, July 18.

Opponents of taxes on travelers often cite an 1867 U. S. Supreme Court decision, Crandall v. Nevada. At issue in that case was a Nevada statute that levied "a tax of one dollar upon every person leaving the state by any railroad, stagecoach or other vehicle engaged or employed in the business of transporting passengers for hire." In striking down the statute, the Court argued: "If the state can tax a railroad passenger one dollar, it can tax him one thousand dollars. If one state can do this, so can every state. And thus one or more states covering the only practicable routes of travel from the east to the west, or from the north to the south, may totally prevent or seriously burden all transportation of passengers from one part of the country to another."

In recent years, the Court has taken a more permissive view of head taxes. Such levies now pass muster if they are "uniform, fair and practical" and if the revenue is used wholly or in large part to maintain a public facility. Thus, in an April 18, 1972, decision affirming the right of a group of cities in New Hampshire and Indiana to levy taxes on air passengers, the Court held: "The facility provided at public expense aids rather than hinders the right to travel. A permissible charge to help defray the cost of the facility is therefore not a burden in the constitutional sense."

The Philadelphia tax no doubt will be challenged on the ground that it does not directly benefit the city's airport. Instead, the $14 million that the city hopes to raise from the tax in fiscal 1973 will be used to pare the growing municipal budget deficit. Philadelphia's need for the money is clear, but the courts may well force the city to seek it elsewhere.

GO-AHEAD URGED FOR 'NO-FAULT'

The news that car owners in Massachusetts will receive an estimated $30 to $40 million in refunds from auto insurance companies should give a tremendous boost to the push for "no-fault" automobile insurance in 48 other states.

(Florida is the only other state besides Massachusetts which has adopted the complete system.)

The Massachusetts Supreme Court, upholding a decision by the state's insurance commissioner, ruled that companies must reduce their compulsory auto insurance rates in 1972 by 27.6 per cent and return the difference to policy holders.

For a car owner in Boston, for example, this will drop his premium to around $47. In 1970, before no-fault, it was $117 and had already fallen to $73 in the first year of no-fault.

Despite the experience of Massachusetts, "fault or no-fault" continues to be a hotly debated question. The stakes are immense, with some 110 million motor vehicles on U. S. roads and an annual record of 16 million traffic accidents, involving 28 million of those vehicles, resulting in 55,000 fatalities, 2 million disabling injuries and over $9 billion in losses.

Under the present, much - criticized system that has prevailed since the beginning of the automobile age, fault is the determining factor in the payment of accident claims. The person who causes the accident is required to pay the losses, either directly or, more usually, through his insurance company.

But fault must first be proved, and this can mean years of waiting for court adjudication. More often than not, out-of -court settlements are made, which may be less adequate for aggrieved claimants. Large chunks of the benefits are eaten up by lawyers' fees.

Under the various no- fault plans which have been advanced, the whole idea of liability is abandoned. All parties involved in an accident receive immediate compensation for their actual damages and medical expenses from their own insurance companies through the right to sue for damages higher than a certain amount, say $2,500, is reserved.

Insurance companies had contested the Massachusetts rate - cutting order, but not no-fault itself. Almost every company has come up with its own version of the concept.

Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company, fourth largest insurer of autos in the country, has designed what it calls one of the most complete plans. The American Insurance Institute advocates its model plan for the industry. The Automobile Manufacturers Association has announced its support of no-fault.

"No-fault has become a popular phrase," says Thomas B. McDonough, a vice-president of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies. "But that doesn't mean the legislatures will go ahead and adopt the fundamental reforms that are needed to correct the present system.

"If people don't speak up to their representatives, the chances are that the legislatures will either do nothing about auto insurance, or enact bogus no-fault plans."

President Nixon recently urged the nation's governors to make no-fault a matter of "top priority." Earlier, Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe warned the governors that Congress would act, perhaps next year, on a national no-fault auto insurance plan if the states fail to do so.

Thus the real question surrounding no-fault seems to be, not if, but how soon.

HAVE YOU EVER FACED THE POSSIBILITY THAT YOUR COUNTRY COULD CEASE TO EXIST?

Nations richer and more powerful in their day than we are in this, have been sabotaged, defeated, enslaved.

Babylon was the largest and richest nation of its time, but its lust for luxury made it an easy mark for the Medes and Persians who overran it, and divided its land and enslaved people between them.

Rome was a greater military power than we ever were, but when free bread and circuses became more important to the people than hard work and patriotism, Rome was invaded and looted by the tougher Vandals.

The Incas were the most civilized, richest people in the Americas, but ruthless, better - armed invaders destroyed them as a nation, and looted everything they owned and had spent generations in creating.

In every case it was the self-indulgent weakness of the victim which made the victory of the invader easy.

How strong is a nation which allows foreign competitors to capture the world leadership from one after another of its most vital industries?

How virile is a nation which allows this or that group to decide not to fight the enemy?

How wise is a nation which gives away so much of its substance abroad and at home that it can no longer afford to keep up its own strength and protection?

How intelligent is a nation more careful to protect the criminal than his victim?

How weak is a nation which allows bureaucracy and a socialist philosophy to run riot and squander billions?

Undoubtedly there were Babylonians, Romans, Incas who warned against overindulgence and weakness, who warned that each citizen is responsible for his nation, and that that responsibility cannot be shrugged off onto officials. But to those who warned of impending trouble there was then as now the smug sneer, "It can't happen here."

But it did.

STRONG RIGHT TO WORK SUPPORT

A recently completed opinion poll shows national sentiment is strongly opposed to compulsory unionism, a condition that bodes well for the ultimate passage of a national right to work law.

In a national sampling of voters, Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., found 62 per cent of Americans favor the proposition that a man can hold a job whether or not he belongs to a union.

By contrast, only 27 per cent of those questioned favored the practice in which a man can get a job if he doesn't belong to a union but has to join after he is hired. Only 4 per cent approved the arrangement under which a man can get a job only if he already belongs to a union.

It is obvious from this survey that members of Congress who have opposed a national right to work law have been badly out of step with most of the public.

In fact, it is now apparent they have been espousing the cause of a minority comprised of just slightly more than a quarter of the American people while turning their back on 62 per cent of the population that opposes forced unionism.

In the long run it is extremely doubtful that mandatory unionism is even good for unions and union members. Recent statistics show that only two of the country's 56 major employment areas with "substantial" unemployment in April were in right to work states.

This would indicate that individual freeom promotes economic vitality and that compulsory unionism has the reverse effect, actually causing more unemployment.

A good, well- run union should not need to force workers to join. It can and should stand on its own merits. A bad, poorly- run union certainly should not be thrust upon employes for any reason.

If the Republican party wants to reflect the will of most Americans it will adopt a plank in its platform favoring passage of a national right to work law along the lines of a bill proposed by Rep. Sam Steiger of Arizona.

Steiger's bill would make voluntary unionism the law of the land and abolish compulsory unionism.

Under this measure a worker could join or refuse to join a union without any reprisals being made against him or any restrictions being placed upon his employment.

KEELER URGES GREATER POLITICAL AWARENESS IN '70.

"This year's elections at all levels will be extremely important to you," W' W. Keeler, Chairman, National Association of Manufacturers, told members of the Rotary Club of Kansas City, Mo. "This is because government at all levels will be challenged more than ever to grapple with the problems of our changing times."

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Phillips Petroleum Company, Mr. Keeler stressed the speed of change, saying that a host of advocates are pressing demands upon us which simply cannot be coped with in the time spans they call for.

Vital Issues

Environment, consumer protection, law and order, war and peace, inflation and the state of our economy, minority problems, and urban crises, are "vital issues, deserving thoughtful solution," Mr. Keeler said.

"While business may be better equipped than any other segment of our society to help solve these problems," Mr. Keeler added, "it cannot do so without a receptive climate in government."

These are the problems that "captivate young people," he explained. "They are going to play an increasing role in acting upon them," he said, "for these young people are tomorrow's electorate."

Presidential Vote

Mr. Keeler said that in 1972 over 12 million people will vote for president for the first time. By 1980, 40 per cent of the electorate will be under 35.

Comparing today's political climate to that of the late 1800's when farmers, young people, laborers and others who wanted more voice in government banded together in the Populist movement, he asserted that today's "New Politics" is a politics of involvement by more people, more deeply concerned about issues and more committed to their solutions.

"Business has two options in this day of the New Politics," he said. "We can stand on the sidelines...or we can become an integral part of the most exciting and fruitful period in our history so far as the relationship between the people and their government is concerned."

SIMPLE EXERCISES BOOST HUMAN POTENTIAL

There is a relationship between good physical coordination and mental coordination. Theorists wonder why, and some won't believe it, but both mental and physical coordination can be impressively improved by proper, simple exercises.

I learned from experience that the "creeping" exercises work. "Creeping" saved me after I had collapsed the 11th dorsal vertebra in my back. I was driving from Tyler to the oil field on a new hard-topped road. We were meeting an automobile and I could see the driver washaving trouble in the misting rain keeping on the road. I pulled over to the ample shoulder of the road and stopped. The oncoming driver when gaining control tried to right the car too quickly, turning the soft-cover car upside down. My brother Sherman, from Miles City, Mont., and I pulled one man from beneath the wreck and learned another was still underneath the soft-topped car. We three ran to the opposite side of the car and, with me in the middle, tried to lift the wreck off the man. I could see his chest was pinned beneath the back of the seat. Within two or three minutes other cars stopped and joined us in the rescue.

I suddenly experienced such excruciating pain that I could participate no further in the rescue. Dr. Charles F. Clayton, President of the Orthopedic Association, prescribed a difficult, spine-stretching exercise and I regained by ability to walk. I learned about "creeping" from the crawling and creeping exercises and in a short time I ceased the more difficult spine-stretching exercise of Dr. Clayton.

Remarkable results in improving the coordination of babies are achieved through crawling and creeping. If they are not encouraged to walk too soon, they develop their intellectual potential more fully. HLH

Meany's Political Acupuncture: McGovern saying privately he needs big labor to win

MIAMI -- The Children's Hour is over. Time is now for the old professionals' Clockwork Orange. Tough. Brutal. You could sense this once you got behind the inner scenes at Sen. McGovern's convention Hotel Doral headquarters suites. he moment his strategists had the nomination wrapped up, they began springing more press leaks about "labor" than the old ex-plumber George Meany could fix.

The tactic is to woo the forces of the allegedly aggrieved old labor curmudgeon. It will succeed eventually.

Priavtely McGovern has told his aides, especially the campaign-hardened Frank Mankiewicz, that without labor "we cannot win." That's true. He can't. That's why one of his first phone conversations early Tuesday morning went to Humbert Humphrey. As predicted in this column, "Hubert" will be McGovern's envoy to the AFL-CIO's court and the reluctant fire-spitting dragon who is its chief.

To understand this interplay, which most observers are misinterpreting, one needs to know the cast of characters and their clout. McGovern and Mankiewicz understand this.

They know that the AFL-CIO has 50,000 locals which swing into action at election time. And that the AFL—CIO has some 140 key organizers working with veteran regional directors. The McGovern team knows that it isn't only the national Committee on Political Education (COPE) which spends money -- and that, should each of the 50,000 locals spend merely $1,000 apiece on the election, this comes to $50 million.

They know that I.W. Abel's United Steelworkers has over 600 field organizers who turn into political directors at campaign time. So do the "international reps" of 100 other unions. They know that "Abe" Able directed 50 Steelworkers who were delegates to the Democratic convention.

They know that a "former" steel union official ran an electronic trailer on Convention Hall grounds. To it came scores of Senators and Representatives. They video-taped comments on the charade inside. If needed, their comments were edited or refilmed by experts and dispatched to the airport so they'd be available all over the nation in local constituencies in the morning. This is the money, equipment and expertise Democratic candidates need vitally.

The McGovern team knows it drubbed the labor team in public -- union men who heard powerful state labor federations such as those of Ohio and Pennsylvania who were for "Hubert." McGovern knows he can't carry New York or California over the bitter opposition of New York's AFL-CIO leader Ray Corbett, already close to Nelson Rockefeller, and over the enmity of "Hubert's" California friends such as the labor federation's chief Jack Henning, an intimate of Meany. And McGovern knows that San Francisco's Mayor Alioto needs labor to "make him look good," especially in northern California. So the Dakotan needs that combination of antagonists as allies.

McGovern knows that he needs help even with the young people. They must be registered to vote. Labor has financed an outfit called "Frontlash" to get the teenage legions lined up. And labor's money subsidizes the black A. Philip Randolph Institute which has gone into a hundred ghettoes for black votes, old and young.

So, though George Meany will be 78 years old, he'll be a mighty political ally. He can turn these forces on, and off if the curt warrior of some 12 Presidential campaigns decides to fight against McGovern all the way.

Odds are, however, that he'll bargain, not fight. Every scowl a maneuver, every grunt, every chomp on the cigar a tactic. Thus he feels he can get more out of President Nixon by leaking all those stories of the Democratic party in shambles or of McGovern's mushiness on Mao and Moscow. And Meany can get more out of McGovern by the artful use of political acupuncture.

And unless McGovern's neo-Galahads and Guineveres scrawl political graffiti over the marble walls of labor's national headquarters, Meany will have to permit his do-or-die Democratic colleagues to campaign for McGovern in the final Presidential campaign weeks.

Contrary to what some others have reported, there are at least 22 -- not just two -- of the 35-man AFL-CIO Executive Council members who are either for McGovern or are veteran Republican haters.

So the McGovern team feels it now needs only to make it possible for the old guard to save face and lossen its millions and minions. That's why the Children's Hour is over. If the "kids and kooks," as the embittered $31,000 - year -Al Barkan, labor's political arm-twister called them on the convention floor, turn off labor's elder statesmen, the young people also will turn off the money spigots, and that would assure McGovern's loss of enough key states -- such as New York, California, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan, Texas, too. Which would have him wandering around in the 1976 convention as lonely and unheeded as Gene McCarthy was here the other day.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

MIAMI BEACH -- George McGovern won the presidential nomination in the Fontainbleau suite of Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien before the convention opened.

McGovern needed a favorable ruling from O'Brien on two key procedural questions. If O'Brien had ruled against him, McGovern would have been short of the votes he needed to win the crucial California credentials fight.

He was accompanied to O'Brien's suite by Connecticut's astute Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, a key member of McGovern's political brain-trust. They urged the beleaguered chairman, for the sake of party unity, to rule for McGovern.

Choosing their words carefully, they reminded O'Brien that McGovern's supporters were essentially the same people who had been shut out of the 1968 Democratic convention. They had worked long and hard for the nomination in 1972. If they should feel that they had been cheated again by aparliamentary ruling, they might split the party apart.

McGovern and Ribicoff were careful to make no threats but merely to describe the mood of their zealous followers.

O'Brien said he didn't intend to continue as party chairman. He has served without salary and he must get back to earning a living, he said.

McGovern and Ribicoff suggested pointedly that O'Brien shouldn't want to leave a splintered party as his legacy. The chairman got the message and later ruled McGovern's way.

One ruling gave McGovern 120 California delegates but denied his opponents the remaining 151 delegates for the crucial vote on seating the California delegation. The other ruling permitted the issue to be settled by a majority of delegates eligible to vote, rather than a majority of the full convention. This was worth another 70 votes for McGovern.

O'Brien Intimidated?

Representatives of all the presidential candidates were summoned to a secret meeting where party counsel Joseph Califano and parliamentarian James O'Hara announced O'Brien's decision.

Max Kampelman, representing Hubert Humphrey, blurted angrily: "I just want you to communicate a message to the chairman from the Humphrey campaign committee. His rulings are appalling. We can see no legal basis for them. We must consider them to be acts of hostility."

Kampelman suggested that O'Brien had favored McGovern because he knew the Humphrey forces would remain loyal to the party but feared the McGovern forces might bolt.

The only explanation for O'Brien's rulings, snapped Kampelman, was "that the chairman has submitted to acts of intimidation."

Califano denied that there had been any "intimidation."

"The use of that word is charitable, " shot back Kampelman.

The final role call on the California seating confirmed that O'Brien's rulings had been essential to McGovern. Without them, he would have been 11 votes short. Then the Stop McGovern forces would have won and the McGovern bandwagon would have started to break down.

GOLDBRICK PAY

The four Democratic senators who were the prime contenders for their party's presidential nomination -- McGovern, Humphrey, Muskie and Jackson -- are now in debt to the taxpayers for more than $50,000.

This is the amount of senatorial salary which they have improperly collected while they were away from the Senate campaigning in presidential primaries.

Federal law provides that, "the Secretary of the Senate . ...shall deduct from the monthly payments of each member ...the amount of his salary for each day that he has been absent from the Senate...unless such members assigns as the reason... the sickness of himself or some member of his family."

Based on information supplied by aides to the four men, McGovern was absent for 90 days, Humphrey 85, Muskie 69 and Jackson 65. Yet, during the periods of their absenteeism, they collected about $50,400 from the U.S. Treasury.

The taxpayers are not likely to get it back, however. The Secretary of the Senate is elected by the Senate and is about as rough on absentees as a truant officer would be if he were appointed by school children.

The present secretary, Francis Valeo, says he has been getting a number of letters demanding to know why he doesn't enforce the law. Valeo has a ready explanation: "The law," he says, "hasn't been enforced for over a century." Besides, he adds, just how a Senator should "pursue his responsibility to the Constitution and the people ...is best judged by the Senator and the Senate."

Urge Acceptance Of Signatures

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sponsors of a proposed "Sunshine Law" took their case to court Friday in an effort to get their open meetings proposal on the November general election ballot.

They asked Circuit Judge James T. Riley to compel Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick to accept about 9,000 additional petition signatures which did not get filed before the midnight July 6 deadline.

As an alternative, they urged that Kirkpatrick be ordered to return all the petitions already filed so they could be used in a possible later election.

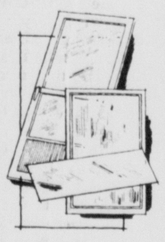

The "Sunshine Law" petition drive was sponsored by the Citizen's Lobby. It said all Missourians should be allowed to vote on the plan to require public agencies of every level of government to conduct their meetings in public, open to the press and everyone else.

Judge Orders Ease Of Wage Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge, in the first successful court challenge of President Nixon's economic stabilization program, has ordered a relaxation of wage controls that could benefit 14 million workers. Union leaders had sought the decision.

U.S. District Judge William B. Jones ruled Friday that the Cost of Living Council (COLC) was "in excess of agency authority" when it limited exemptions from wage controls to persons earning less than $1.90 an hour.

The ruling meant the council could no longer use $1.90 as the figure beyond which wage raises have been limited to 5.5 per cent.

In granting a summary judgment in a suit brought by several labor unions, including the AFL-CIO, Jones did not set a new exemption figure.

However, he cited a $3.35-anhour figure based on a Bureau of Labor Statistics study, which said this wage would provide the $6,960 considered adequate annual income for an urban family of four.

The AFL-CIO estimated about 14 million workers are making between $1.90 and $3.35 an hour and thus will be granted exemption from wage controls.

The Cost of Living Council had no immediate comment on the decision, but is expected to appeal the case.

The lawsuit was based on amendments to the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970, which provide that "any individual whose earnings are substandard or who is amongst the working poor" should be exempt from wage controls.

The $1.90 figure was set by the COLC after the Pay Board failed to provide a cutoff figure and rejected figures of $3.50 and $2.20. A council spokesman said at the time the $1.90 cutoff would exempt 21 per cent of the non-supervisory workers while $3.35 would exempt 50 per cent.

Peace Talks Begin Again

PARIS (AP) — Hanoi Poliburo member Le Duc Tho returned to Paris today and said he is prepared to hold new secret talks with Dr. Henry Kissinger if Kissinger has "something new" to discuss.

Tho has held a series of private talks with Kissinger in the past. He was asked if he is ready to meet with President Nixon's national security advisor again.

He replied: "If Mr. Kissinger has something new to say and shows an interest in seeing me, I am ready to see him to discuss a correct solution to the Vietnam problems."

Tho said he had no other statements to make beyond what was said earlier this week by Xuan Thuy, head of the North Vietnamese delegation to the peace talks. Thuy has reiterated that the Communist seven-point plan is the "correct basis" for settlement of the conflict. The plan calls for the United States to announce a total troop withdrawal date, the immediate resignation of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and the setting up of a coalition government in Saigon.

Dedicate Scout Lake

SILVA — Formal dedication ceremonies were held Thursday night for Lake R. B. Potashnick at Camp Lewallen for Boy Scouts in Wayne County.

Dr. R. A. Ritter of Cape Girardeau delivered the dedication address, describing Potashnick as "a man who has thought of others along the way through his busy life. He has taken time to hear about the needs of his community and has responded with action."

Potashnick was approached with the idea of loaning some heavy construction equipment to the lake construction project when it was first planned in 1966. Instead, he assigned engineers to test the area for its ability to hold water and then sent an entire construction crew to handle the project for the camp. The lake was completed in 1968.

Potashnick was presented a miniature canoe paddle inscribed with formal thanks from Southeast Missouri Council of Boy Scouts for his contributions in building the seven-acre lake.

File Conflicting Reports On Petition Signatures

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — No irregularities have been found in signatures on transportation bond issue petitions from the q8th District, says Byron Kinder, Cole County prosecutor.

The Jefferson City Post-Tribune also reported Friday that no fraudulent signatures were found in a random sampling of 300 signatures of persons in the Dixon area.

Earlier, the St. Louis GlobeDemocrat said it had checked 50 signatures in the 8th District and 41 of the persons said they hadn't signed the petition.

The secretary of state's office is studying the petitions.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — State Sen. John Schneider (D-Florissant), turned over information Friday to the St. Louis circuit attorney that a group of juveniles was paid to write forged signatures on petitons seeking to place a proposed $730 million transportation bond issue on the November ballot, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported today in a copyrighted story.

Many forged signatures were found on petitions from the 8th Congressional District which were turned in to Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick's office, the newspaper said earlier this week.

King Plans To Push Campaign

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Plans to step up his campaign the remaining weeks preceding the state's Aug. 8 primary were announced Friday by Republican gubernatorial candidate R. J. "Bus" King.

Kin., who in June said restricted financial backing was forcing curtailment of his active campaigning, said "unexpected contributors" have offered solutions.

"While we do not expect to mount the same kind of activities we had planned, it is probable that I will be able to travel throughout the state," he said.

"Many people seem to have assumed that I had withdrawn from the race. That is not the case," King added.

Finds Bathing Dangerous

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP) — This just hasn't been Eddie McCann's week.

First, McCann suffered minor injuries after being hit by a car while taking a bath.

Police quoted Gary Tidwell, 20, of Coolidge, driver of the car, as saying his car crashed into the wall of McCann's bathroom after he suffered an epileptic seizure.

While McCann was recuperating at Pinal County General Hospital, burglars broke into his store at Superior Thursday night.

State Supreme Court Narrows Senate Race

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court has ruled Brick Storts III of St. Louis off the primary ballot as a Democratic candidate in the 1st Senatorial District of St. Louis.

Previously the court has ruled in residence cases involving members of the House that the House is the sole judge of the qualifications of its members. Storts urged the court to follow the same rule on candidates.

But the court said that doesn't apply to candidates who, under the Constituion, must be valid residents of their districts in order to run.

Rep. Donald J. Gralike, D-St. Louis, brought the suit. With Storts off the ballot, he has only one opponent, David Lee Houlihan. There is no Republican candidate so Gralike would be elected automatically if he wins the primary.

The 1st District seat is being vacated by veteran Sen. Robert Pentland, D-St. Louis, who is retiring.

Circuit Judge Ninian M. Edwards, appointed as special judge to find the facts in the case, concluded Storts lived in Clayton until April 18 this year, when he moved to a 1st District address in St. Louis County, 4290 Chateau de Ville.

Investigate Soldier's Death

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. military command said today it is investigating field reports that a disgruntled South Vietnamese marine shot and killed a U.S. Army helicopter crewman.

The field reports said the South Vietnamese marine shot the American in the head when he refused to let him aboard a helicopter near Quang Tri City on Thursday.

The command said it could not confirm the report but acknowledged that an American crewman was killed by small arms fire. It did not use the term "enemy fire" as it normally does in casualty reports. The victim's name was withheld.

The command said that on Thursday afternoon an Army UH1 helicopter crashed on takeoff while evacuating wounded South Vietnamese marines two miles northeast of Quang Tri City.

"Shortly thereafter," the command said, "a second U.S. helicopter landed and extracted the crew of the downed helicopter. During this extracton, one of the rescue crew members was killed by small arms fire. An investigation is being conducted."

Meat Plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meat and poultry plants operating entirely with Missouri will be inspected by the U.S. Agriculture Department beginning Aug. 15.

The move affects about 300 meat and 22 poultry plants, and will save the state the $530,000 appropriated by the Missouri Legislature to continue state inspection.

A USDA spokesman said Friday that operators who plan to continue operations after Aug. 14 must notify the USDA.

Ma Bell

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., did not violate labor laws by ordering employes to change T-shirts which had the statement "Ma Bell is a Cheap Mother" written on them, the National Labor Relations Board ruled here Friday.

The NLRB ruled the shirts carried an obscene connotation and that the company was within its right ordering the employes to change the shirts or leave the premises.

The shirts were worn by 23 Bell employes during contract negotiations in St. Louis in June, 1971, and 19 workers walked off the job briefly when ordered to change the shirts.

Won't Aid McGovern

HILLSBORO, Mo. (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern will received no support in Missouri for his Democratic presidential bid from State Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, Democratic contender for the governor nomination.

Blackwell said Friday that he and McGovern are at "opposite ends of the poles" on such issues as forced busing, amnesty for draft resisters, marijuana and tax reform.

He described U.S. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, McGovern's running mate, as a "close personal friend," but said he would turn down any request for support from Eagleton.

He added that he would support neither McGovern nor President Nixon.

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, help us to use the tool of judgment in the building of our own lives as You intended. Help us to use it not sparingly, but honestly; in the name of Christ. Amen.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Uneconomic War

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

To Freddy and a group of citizens, the Vietnam War was about as popular as whale oil on fresh strawberries. And, insisting that the government's prosecution of the war violated the Constitution, they hustled themselves off to court where they demanded an order permanently restraining the government from spending any more bucks on the conflict.

"The needless loss of American lives and the war-induced inflation," they told the judge, "must be brought to a screeching halt. Under the Constitution, only Congress can declare war and not the President. Being President and being right isn't necessarily the same thing.

"That may be," responded the government, "and the place to disagree is at the ballot box, But, in the meanwhile, citizens have no standing in court to stop a war. Consequently, the case must be dismissed."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you send Freddy and his group home without being heard?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the history of our Constitution reveals that the power given to Congress to declare war was not a happenstance without purpose. Considering all the suffering that war entails, the intention of the Framers of the Constitution was to make it difficult for the nation to engage in war by lodging the power to declare war in a body of men rather than in one individual. The allegations of Freddy and his group as to the loss of life and economic injury to the nation caused by the Vietnam War, Concluded the judge, gives them sufficient standing to challenge the constitutionality of that conflict in court.

Ann Landers
Brides Who Look Sometimes Buy

Dear Ann Landers: When I first married several years ago, my dad used to come over almost every day at 11:30 a.m. and stay for lunch. It never occurred to him that I might have some place to go or something to do. He just assumed he was always welcome. I was inconvenienced plenty but I never said a word. If I had plans, I slipped upstairs to the extension telephone and postponed or cancelled them.

My husband was transferred to another state after two years, and one of the things I was happiest to leave behind was my dad's daily visits. Last week my husband informed me that he is being transferred back to our home town. The first thing I thought of was you-know- who.

Ann, my dad can talk the toenails off a brass monkey. I haven't the patience I once had. Also, I now have four children. What can I do about those daily noon visits without hurting his feelings? -- Badly Bent In Benton Harbor

Dear B.B.: Write your dad and tell him how delighted you are to be moving back. Tell him you'll miss those daily noon visits which will be impossible now with four youngsters and a bigger house, but you'll invite him as often as you can ---etc., etc

Dear Ann Landers: I laughed when I read that letter from "Wisconsin Ann Fan" who told about the ad in the paper by the owner of a bridal shop. It seems he was fed up with mothers parading through his store with their daughters pretending to be interested in buying gowns, when all they wanted was to look so they could go home and copy the style.

I'm a mother of a bride who was married two years ago. I sew quite well. To keep expenses down I decided to make my daughter's wedding gown. We went "shopping" for ideas.

In the bridal store my daughter tried on a perfectly magnificent gown with a cap and veil and fell in love with it. I knew at once I could never duplicate the fabric or workmanship. We bought the outfit on the spot.

I'll bet dozens of mothers have had this same experience, so I wish the bridal shop owners wouldn't be so critical of us "lookers." --Landers Readers In The Okinawa Star

Dear Reader: Thanks for writing -- and while I'm at it, I'd like you to know that I stopped in Okinawa on my way to Vietnam in 1967 and you have a nifty newspaper there.

Dear Ann Landers: I have this very good friend who is a sweet a woman as you would want to meet, but she has a personality trait that drives me up the wall. Should I tell her, as an act of friendship?

Whoever she's talking to, within five minutes she takes on that person's personality, speech patterns, facial expressions and hand gestures. Others have noticed it and commented. In the space of one hour at a cocktail party, she can be a Southern coquette, a French artist, a Midwestern housewife, a German scientist and a Cook County Democrat.

How about it? Should I tell her? -- Across the Room

Dear Ac: Leave her alone. In all probability her chameleon behavior is not contrived and she couldn't change if she wanted to. Incidentally, who put together that guest list?

Is an upcoming wedding driving you bananas? Ann Landers' comprehensive booklet, "The Bride's Guide," gives you the facts from the initial announcement to the last bill and who should pay it. To receive your copy, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Home Economic Students Use President's Home For Classroom

FULTON — What would happen if a group of college students began a "live-in" at the college president's home? This new form of social upheaval on today's campus occurred during the William Woods College 1972 four-week Short Term. Fifteen home economics students resided at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Cutlip, President and First Lady of William Woods College.

These students were enrolled in the class titled "Management of the Home" ... described as teaching the principles of the utilization of family resources with emphasis on the wise use of time and energy. The course includes both theory and practical experience in a residence by applying the principles of home management.

The Cutlip's home is built in such a fashion that they could retire comfortably to a second floor apartment, while the fifteen students controlled the entire basement and first floor. This area included the living room, den, dining room, breakfast area, kitchen, butler's pantry, and basement living quarters for the students ... affectionately called the garden room.

The "garden room" or student accommodations consisted of bunk beds, dressers, two large bathrooms, furnished lounge area, pool table, and a large closet often referred to as the "runway". The pool table is not an item normally found in the living quarters of a William Woods student, but its presence was justified since a protective plywood cover served as a table for working with clothing patterns.

Mrs. Katherine Love, chairman of the Department of Home Economics, was the class instructor. Although she did not actually live in the house with the students, many hours each day were spent at the Cutlip home. She gained 15 daughters, just as each student gained 14 sisters.

As the course description implies, home management was the goal. The students took over all food preparation, housekeeping, laundering, and other household responsibilities ... concentrating on the most efficient management methods of time, energy and money.

A daily lecture period of two hours gave the students time to structure their own management system, to share experiences, and to bring out and discuss all problems. During this period, they also covered a text and workbook along with taking part in three member panel discussions.

Miss Pat Evens, a participating senior, spoke of the first few days as complete chaos ..." it did not take us long to realize that for fifteen students to live and work together comfortably, it would be necessary to outline specific jobs and their respective responsibilities."

Very soon a workable organization of duties was established with each student being assigned a different position of responsibility each day. These positions were: Cook ... planning, shopping, preparing, serving, cleaning and clearing tables, selecting and costing meals, and directing assistant cooks. Cook's helper ... sets table, serves food, puts clean dishes away, empties trash and attends to any other details. Laundress ... collects sheets, towels and wash- cloths ... washes, drys, folds, and returns items. Iron pillow cases, placements and napkins as needed. Doorkeeper ... lock doors at night, check sign- out cards, turn out lights, answer phone during meals, and act as head hostess during guest meals. Housekeeper and three assistants ... responsible for all daily cleaning and any special cleaning that may have been assigned that day. Out- of- doors- keeper ... sweep patio, walks and porches as needed. Everyone ... dust own dresser, and pick up own area daily before class.

The students agreed that the position of cook was the most challenging because of the responsibilities and the daily budget of $2 per day per person. Within these limitations, the cooks major concern was that of daily nutritional balance. Cooking for 15 students and usually two guests per meal kept the class busy in the kitchen almost 24 hours a day. One student was overheard saying that she could cook broccoli for 17 people, but didn't know how to cook for herself. Meals were served at 8 a.m., noon and 6 p.m. Class was held from 9 to 11 a.m. daily. According to Miss Evans, this kept everyone moving and as soon as one crew had the dinner mess cleaned up, the next crew started preparations for the following day.

Luncheon or dinner guests were entertained almost daily. This not only gave good practice in gracious dining but also gave the guests an opportunity to see what was actually happening in the "Management of the Home Course." A student recalled that "the Cutlips ate dinner with us on only two occasions. The remainder of the time they had to fend for themselves ... one evening as we were seated around an elegant table setting, eating a meal fit for a king, Mrs. Cutlip came through the front door with two takeout bags from the local Dairy Queen."

Probably one of the most humorous situations was that of dating. Imagine the boyfriend's first reaction to meeting his date at the president's home, or the kidding he got when his dorm- mates or fraternity brothes passed on the message to call his girlfriend at the president's home.

Pat Evans called herself and her classmates the 15 mad housewives ... "as I read back through my diary (which each of us was required to keep) ... I did feel like a housewife. At 6:45 p.m. I was on my hands and knees scrubbing the floor ... yet, was to be dressed and ready for a cocktail party in fifteen minutes ... needless to say, I was late."

There is the impression that there was never a dull moment. For instance; one evening the doorbell rang ... someone after a short delay answered the door ... no one was there ... again the doorbell rang... still no one. However, after several more recurrences of the bell, someone realized that they had been locking the thumb bolts preventing the caller, Dr. Cutlip, from using his key to get into his own house.

Before someone answered each doorbell, with some delay, Dr. Cutlip had gone to a different entrance. A normal evening was spent with someone busy in the kitchen, others doing laundry, several watching television in the den and a few sewing or catching up on their studies.

The aforementioned diary was a class requirement containing a daily resume of duties performed with a mention of successes and failures ... and possible improvements. Quote one diary, "today I spilled bathroom cleaner on the carpet ... it immediately late through the nap leaving nothing but the basic weave. I wanted to crawl in the nearest hole and die ... but there wasn't one available."

Miss Evans summed up the whole experience. "We were all very apprehensive as the class began that first day, but as things progressed so did we and so did our relationships. I know I feel like I have 14 new sisters and a new set of parents. And yes, it was great having Dr. Cutlip as a 'house father'."

Those students participating in the class were: Cindy Barnard, Tarkio, Julie Cofield, Ft. Thomas, Ky.; Diane Corvino, Levittown, N.Y.; Louise Durant, Kansas City; Patricia Evans, Fraser, Col. Chris Gersh, Leawood, Kan., Cherie Hook, Olmstead Falls, Ohio; Kathy Moore, Frontenac; Katie Mullen, Des Peres; Nancy Perkins, Roachdale, Ind.; Linda Pope, McCredie; Tina Reid, Kirkwood; Cheryl Steiner, Chesterfield; Linda Wake, Independence and Janet Loveland, Fulton.

The annual membership drive and fund-raising activities for Sikeston Activity Center will begin in September. The board also discussed the possibility of an additional play next summer for college and high school students.

Other members of the Little Theatre board of directors are Rosalie Boyer, Leroy Parmenter, Nora McMullin, F. X. Schumacher, III, Hope Terrell, Lyman Dale, Carole Sue Clayton, Jim Wenneker and Thedamy Cleek.

WEEDERS GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

The tomato is just about the most popular home garden vegetable, according to pollsters. It's pretty versatile, delicious as a fresh item, and it can be baked, stewed, fried, juiced and pickled. You can use it in salad and soup and as a topping for the hot dog, spaghetti. It may be transformed into catsup.

The plant, native to South America, was brought to Europe by early explorers and in France and Italy it was known as "Apple of Love."

Friends of Thomas Jefferson, who grew tomatoes, thought they were poisonous. So did many other people, and the tomato wasn't grown much in this country until 1835.

There's a lot of nutrition in tomatoes. Bulk for bulk, tomatoes provide as much Vitamin C as grapefruit and orange juice. One small tomato has about 20 per cent of the minimum daily requirement of Vitamin A. New tomato varieties have even more Vitamin A.

You can get tomatoes in yellow, orange, pink or red; round, pear-shape, globular or slightly flattened. There are commercial varieties in which all fruit ripens simultaneously, but home gardeners don't care about that.

If you want to start your own plants, figure on starting five to seven weeks before you would set them outdoors.

A family needs only a few plants, which makes it inexpensive and convenient to buy started plants. If you buy them in individual containers that can be set directly into the ground, there won't be much shock to the plants.

Tomatoes like full sun. Don't plant them near black walnut trees, roots of which produce juglone. This can stunt or kill tomatoes.

New Garden Book

Frank (Chico) Bucaro can't read or write. He knows his organic gardening. David Wellechinsky is a writer and he's learning organic gardening. So they combined talents to produce "Chico's Organic Gardening and Natural Living" (J. B. Lippincott Co.).

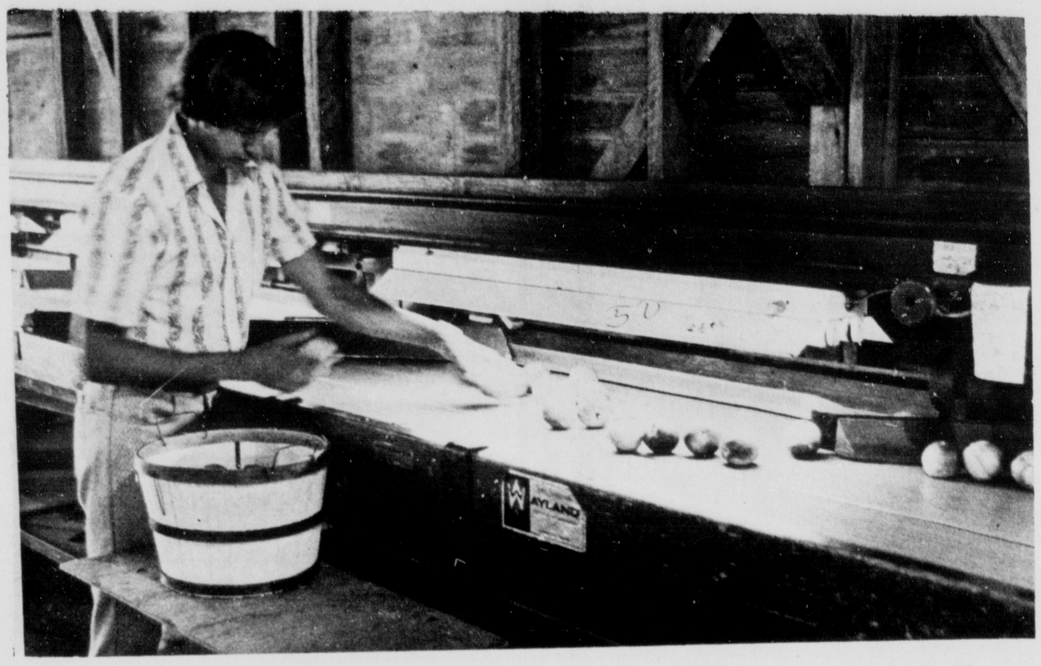

Chico raises all sorts of popular and less common vegetables in California. He tells how to deal with bugs and diseases, how to prune and how to cook, Italian style. He teaches organic gardening.

Chico's stories are down to earth. "If the plant is sick because something is wrong in the roots, the plant looks droopy, they start to look yellow and pale looking and then they fall down. If the plant needs food, the plant is a different kind of yellow than when she is sick. . . . If you just tell the plant you're going to take care of it, she will live a little longer. . ."

Tree Topping

Someone asked when was the best time to top a tree. I'd say no time was good unless the tree was ailing, damaged or had outgrown its allotted space.

Sharply cutting back a big tree lessens its attractiveness, leaves large wounds and causes weak growth that could cause the tree to break sooner.

Missouri Production Up In '71

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said here, Missouri's 1971 production of cheese, butter, cottage cheese and frozen products increased as compared with 1970.

Butter production increased sharply with production of creamery butter totaling 31,598,000 pounds, 22 per cent more than produc ion in 1970.

Total production for all types of cheese, excluding full-skim American and cottage, was 104,754,000 pounds, 6 per cent ahead of the 1970 total.

Cottage cheese curd production was at 16,631,000 pounds, 1 per cent ahead of last year. Creamed cottage cheese was production at 26,379,000 pounds, which was 3 per cent greater than the previous year.

The production of condensed milk, unsweetened, skimmed condensed milk output decreased by 5 per cent over last year, on production of 29,927,000 pounds.

Missouri's ice cream production totaled 18,340,000 gallons in 1971, 11 per cent above the 1970 level. Ice milk production totaled 12,131,000 gallons in 1971 compared with 11,758,000 gallons the previous year. Milk sherbert production decreased 8 percent below 1970. Ice cream mix and ice milk mix increased 12 percent and 2 per cent repectively in 1971." Mellorinetype" frozen dessert and mix out put decreased 6 per cent and milk sherbert decreased 15 per cent from 1970.

Broilers Up 6% From '71

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — For the week ending July 1st, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reported 562,000 chicks were placed for broilers in the state. The figure is 6 per cent more than last year and 5 per cent more than the previous week.

Missouri hatcheries set a total of 270,000 eggs for broilers during the week ending July 1st. This was 14 per cent less than the previous week and 16 per cent less than the same period last year.

Australia May Boost Beef Shipments To U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Australia may be considering a boost in beef shipments to the United States by slowing down exports to other lucrative markets such as Japan and Europe, according to a government source.

About half the beef Australia exports already comes to U.S. consumers. But now that President Nixon has lifted quota restrictons, Australia may attempt to boost U.S. sales in hopes of getting a larger permanent share when quotas are re-imposed.

In other words according to the source, Australia would like to set a precedent this year to help build a case for a larger normal quota later on when controls resume.

When he suspended quote restrictions June 26, Nixon said the open door would apply only for the balance of 1972. The action was taken to make more meat available to American consumers at a time when U.S. beef cattle are at record high prices.

The Australian Meat Board, which oversees shipments to the country's world markets, is scheduled to meet later this month to discuss the opened U.S. market and the supply of export meat Australia is expected to have available during the balance of the year.

Donald M. Rube, assistant administrator for commodity programs in the Foreign Agricultural Service of USDA, said the provision in the 1964 meat quota law which requires quarterly estimates still applies.

The law which prescribes quotas for fresh, frozen or chilled beef, veal, mutton and goat, requires the secretary of agriculture to estimate every three months the amount of such meat expected to be imported during the entire calendar year.

That estimate, for the third quarter, was due by July 1. Rubel said he did not know exactly when it would be announced.

Before Nixon suspended the restrictions, the estimate was for 1.24 billion pounds to be imported this year, based on "voluntary restraint" agreements with the supplying countries.

Of that, Australia's share was 600.4 million pounds and New Zealand's 250.9 million. A dozen other countries, mainly in Latin America, accounted for the kbalance.

Through May—the most recent figure available—quota meat imports this year totaled about 456.4 million pounds, up 14 per cent from the first five months of 1971. The May shipments totaled 107.9 million pounds, a 41 per cent gain from the month last year.

Australia through May this year exported 219.6 million pounds of meat to U.S. markets, up 43 per cent from a year earlier, according to government records.

Lay-By Chemical Weed Control Recommendation

By THOMAS A. BROWN, JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD — The use of a "lay-by" application of herbicides for late season weed control in cotton fields will probably be a paying proposition in many cases this season. A heavy weed infestation can reduce cotton yields, increase harvest losses and result in cotton being reduced in grade by $15 to $20 per acre. The "lay-by" chemical treatment will do much to reduce such losses under certain conditions.

Much of the cotton is this area is smaller than usual at present, and skippy cotton stands are found in a number of fields. In such cases where cotton will not shade the row and middles soon after lay-by time, the lay-by chemical applications will usually pay good dividends. In addition profitable returns can usually be expected in cases of heavy rainfall, in fields where irrigation is practiced, or where weeds are usually a problem. It should be emphasized that late weed infestations cannot always be predicted at lay-by time.

Herbicides recommended for "lay-by" applications are Diuron (Karmex) and Linuron (Lorox) and both will give fair to good control of most common weeds and grasses. These herbicides are recommended as a broadcast, directed spray.

Diuron is recommended for use at rates ranging from one-half to one pound of active ingredient per acre on sandy loam soils to one to 1.5 pounds per acre on heavy clay soils. Cover the middles completely while directing the spray away from the cotton. Irrigate, if possible, to activate the chemical if rain does not fall within 10 days following treatment.

Linuron will do a better job on taller weeds than Diuron. Recommendations call for the application of one- half to three- fourth pound of active ingredient per acre after cotton plants are 15 inches tall. Apply in the same manner suggested for Diuron. In fields where a fall crop is to be seeded, this chemical should be considered as soil residues following the Diuron treatment may injure fall seeded crops.

Both chemicals should be applied to a weed- free soil following the last normal cultivation. If small weeds are present, a surfactant should be added at the rate of one quart per 100 gallons of spray solution.

The cost of application may be reduced by applying the herbicide in the process of making the last cultivation.

New Record Soybean Planting

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Crop and Livestock Service reports that soybeans planted for all purposes in the state cover an estimated 3.95 million acres, a new record for the state.

Conversely, acres of corn planted for all purposes totaled 2.72 million—an 18 per cent drop from last year and the lowest acreage on record since 1890 when 2.59 acres were harvested.

Sorghum planted in Missouri amounted to 430,000 acres compared to 740,000 last year. However, with the exception of 1971, it is the highest acreage since 1960 when 590,000 were planted.

Cotton acreage is up 22 per c ent from last year and wheat is up 19 per cent.

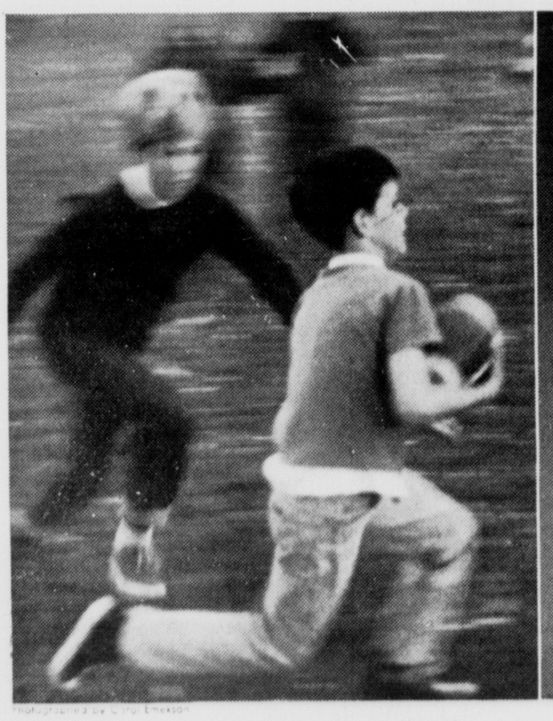

Plantings for oats, barley and rye were less than in 1971.

All men contend with the questions posed by the contrasts of sickness and health, poverty and plenty. And ask the question "why". Why loneliness in a world that would join hands? Why war when the impulse of the heart is to love? The aching chasm between the real and the ideal everywhere provokes the question . . .

WHY?

In a world looking for answers maybe God is the place to start. God is hope. God is now.

Reds Sink Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Clay Carroll's fast ball put him in trouble Friday night, so the square-jawed reliever went back to work with a sinker in recording his 20th save.

"That 20th save came hard," said the 31-year-old Cincinnati Reds right-hander, who choked off a budding St. Louis Cardinals rally in a 6-3 win.

"I didn't feel like I had very much out there," he added, "but I was lucky enough to get the ball down. This kind of humidity wilts you."

Carroll, appearing in his 35th game, was auspicious against the first and final batter he faced in relief of Ross Grimsley, 7-3, who pitched the first 7 1-3 innings.

Lou Brock and Matty Alou had worked singles off Grimsley around a force play in the eighth when the 6-foot-1 Carroll came on and induced Joe Torre to ground into a double play with his first pitch.

That preserved a 4-2 lead the Reds expanded to 6-2 in the ninth before Clay walked Donn Clendenon and Ed Crosby singled pinch-runner Bernie Carbo to third with one out in the Cards' last half-inning.

Pinch-hitter Jose Cruz then drove a sacrifice fly to center field to make it 6-3 and pinchhitter Ted Sizemore hit another fast ball into left field.

With runners on first and third and the game in the balance, Carroll served up a sinker to Brock, who slapped it to second baseman Joe Morgan's right for a force at second.

"It kind of scared me because, he (Brock) is the type of hitter who can tie it up," said Carroll. "I was lucky to get the sinker where I wanted it."

The run off Carroll, who carried an earned run average of 1.43 into the appearance, was only the second in his last 31 innings.

"I've just been lucky," he insisted, however. "The guys have been playing good ball behind me and we've had good hitting."

Cincinnati's victory, boosting its National League West Division lead to 2 1/2 games over the Houston Astros, was the Reds' eighth in 10 games against the Cards.

Most of the damage was inflicted against Cards starter Rick Wise, 9-9, who left trailing 4-0 after surrendering five hits and walking three in the first 1 1-3 innings.

SEMO Stars Romp

Capitalizing on an error with one out in the fifth frame, five walks and four big hits in the same inning, the SeMo- All Stars broke away from a 1-0 deficit and rolled to a decisive 11-1 lead over the Sikeston Senior Babe Ruth All- Stars in Friday night's first game in the best of three playoff for the District 3 Championship.

The visiting SeMo stars added five runs in the next frame and captured a 16-1 win in their first step toward a ticket into the state playoff slated July 19-22 at Jefferson City.

The All-Star unit, comprised of players from Lilbourn, New Madrid, East Prairie and Bertrand, found itself trailing early in the game as the Sikeston stars scored a quick run in the first inning. Greg Colwick put the Sikeston stars on the scoreboard in the opening frame, as teammate Phil Puckett followed Colwick's leadoff single with the Sikeston All- Stars' only extra- base hit of the evening, a triple.

Lilbourn's Pat McClarty went the distance for the SeMo Stars, checking the Sikeston lineup on a three-hitter. After getting out of the first inning with only one run, McClarty and his team's tight defense held Sikeston to only four base- runners through the remaining six innings.

The SeMo All- Stars pounded three Sikeston pitchers for 13 hits. SeMo third baseman Mitch Allen paced the winners at the plate with three hits, one single and two doubles, one of which came in his team's 11-run fifth frame. McClarty aided his own cause by collecting two hits — a fifth-inning triple and a sixth-inningsingle.Lilbourn's Greg Weeks picked up two singles.

Mike Mitchell opened on the mound for the Sikeston All- Stars and gave way to relief work from Richard Blankenship and Rick LaPlant late in the game. Mitchell received the loss.

Tonight the teams square off in the second of three possible matches to decide the District 3 winner and representative in the state tournament. Game time tonight is 8 p.m. The Sikeston Stars must win to stay in the running. A win for the Sikeston crew would throw the series into a 2 p.m. Sunday tie- breaker. Another Sikeston loss would wrap up the district title for the SeMo Stars.

Record Ticket Sales

ST. LOUIS (AP)-- The St. Louis Football Cardinals don't open their training camp until next Monday, but they have already totaled up their season ticket sales.

The figure comes to 41,542-an increase of 814 over last year's season ticket sales and another record high.

Cardinal vice-president Bill Bidwill said the sales are "a wonderful vote of confidence to football and to the Cardinals from St. Louis fans."

Patterson-Ali Fight Aug. 28

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson can't wait to grow older. In fact, the former twotime world heavyweight boxing champion feels nothing improves him like age.

"I'm hoping to still be fighting when I'm 38 or 39 so I will be twice as good. I know by then my reflexes will be sharper," the 37-year-old Patterson said Friday night after he pounded Pedro Agosto almost at will and halted the lumbering Puerto Rican after six rounds.

A victory over Agosto, 196 pounds, in the scheduled 10 round bout paved the way for Patterson to fight Muhammad Ali Aug. 28 at Madison Square Garden. A defeat would have cancelled the match. Ali fights Al "Blue" Lewis of Detroit in Dublin, Ireland next Wednesday.

"I'm not making any prediction about my fight with Clay Ali," said Patterson, who hiked his record to 55-7-1 with 40 knockouts. "I just think it'll be a good fight."

He said he would have preferred to wait until next year to meet Ali, who stopped him in a title bout in 1965, but decided to take the fight now "because I may not get another chance. I'm getting sharper with each fight and am gaining confidence."

After defeating Oscar Bonavena earlier this year, Patterson said he didn't feel ready to fight heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, but Friday said he would meet the rugged titleholder at any time.

"I'm ready for Frazier now. I'd rather wait a year, although that doesn't mean I'm not confident. If offered a title shot now I'd take it. I might never get another chance."

Gale Sayers' Comeback Try: Determination, No Desperation

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

CHICAGO — (NEA) — Two or three times a day, seven days a week since he tossed his cane away three months ago, Gale Sayers works out in Soldier Field here. He soon will know whether this effort has been futile, whether he is finished as a football player.

He was the most explosive, electric runner in the game for five seasons. But he has played only four games in the last two years, and has undergone three knee operations (the last one last fall).

He goes to summer camp with the Chicago Bears on July 13. In the two weeks following he expects to discover whether he has another season or two left in his legs.

If he does, fine. If he doesn't, spill no tears for Gale Sayers.

"That's what's so good," says Sayers. "I don't have the terrific burden of having to make good because I have nothing else. I'm financially set right now. I don't need football, but I want it."

Sayers sat on the edge of his seat (he is forever the "man in motion," full of energy, always on the edge of his seat) in his office at WCIU-TV here. He wore a light blue polo shirt which accentuated his tawny muscles, natty blue knit slacks and incongruous leather sneakers with red stripes.

He threw back his head in easy laughter when it was observed that he had not gone to pot.

"No," he said. "I'm 201. That's just about my playing weight. But I'm tired from my workout schedule. I need a rest bad. But I can't take one. So I've got to take one-minute vacations. You know, take a quick daydream that I'm on a beach in Hawaii."

He walks without any apparent limp. He feels now that he can come back as an effective runner—depending on the type of offensive line the Bears will have. ("But I'll never be the same —not after seven years and three operations.") He knows he will experience pain and he says he is not timid about being hit ("I'm a football player," he says. "If you're scared, get out of it"). And yet there is a ray of doubt where once there was none. Sayers is not sure that he "wants it bad enough," at age 28 and after half a decade of high accomplishment.

"I'll see," he says. "I'm trying it this one more time because I don't want to look back when I'm 50 and wonder if I could've played one or two more years. One other reason. I love the game."

Sayers has been careful with his money. He says with pride that if he liquidated everything he has he would wind up with about three-quarters of all the money he has earned from pro football. "Not many athletes can say something like that," said Sayers.

"You know, some blacks misuse the word 'brother,'" said Sayers. "They think all white men are trying to give them the shaft. That's not true. My high school coach, my college coach, George Halas and Sam Lizzo (a Chicago banker) all helped me straight."

Sayers accepted counseling on his decision to become a stock broker a few years ago. He took a six-month apprenticeship with a top national firm; he said he worked harder to obtain a broker's license than anything else he has ever done. There had been an added pressure on him to pass the test; he would become the company's first black broker.

"I was willing to work at it," said Sayers. "Most athletes are spoiled. They all want to start in as vice-presidents. If not, they don't work in off-season. That's why a lot of 'em are broke. No one wants to start at the bottom."

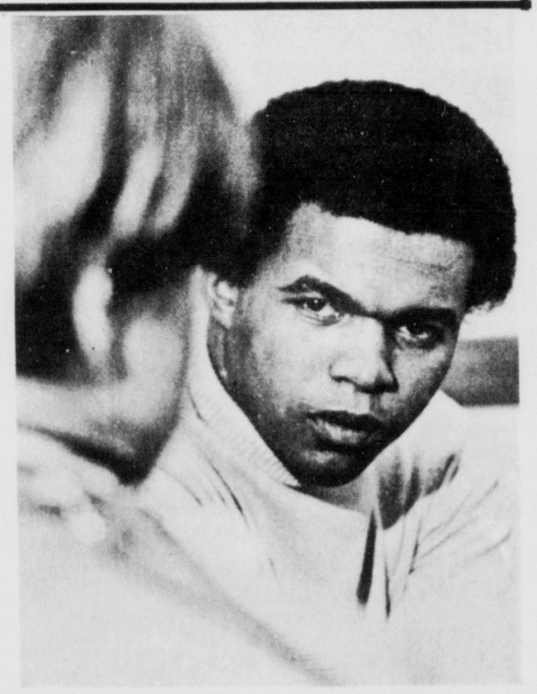

Now, Sayers is developing his television technique. He is a co-host of a talk show on WCIU, a small UHF station in Chicago; he has taken a six-month leave of absence from his brokerage firm. This is "the bottom," and Sayers hopes to rise to a network station in a few years. The show is called "Hamarabee 26." Hamarabi is Swahili for "togetherness."

Sayers has become a national symbol of togetherness. It was his relationship with Brian Piccolo—teammate, road roommate and friend who died of cancer in 1970—that inspired the hit TV drama, "Brian's Song." The story also propelled Sayers' autobiography, "I Am Third," into a top seller.

"I didn't like a part of the movie because it made too much of the black-white thing," said Sayers. "We were just two cats cuttin' up. Could've been two white guys or two niggers. But Pick was just good folks."

Sayers thought a moment. "Even if I'm finished as a football player now, I have no regrets," he said. "How could I?"

American Frontrunners Triumph

In Friday night's only action in Sikeston Little League play, the American League Western Division front runners picked up victories and remained one full game apart in the standings.

First National Bank picked up its 10th win in 11 outings with a 31-0 blasting of Flower Basket in the nightcap at Farris Field. It was the Flower Basket's second game in two days in which the opposition scored 31 runs. Caproco tagged Flower Basket with a 31-1 loss Thursday night.

In Friday's first game, Police (9-2), trailing First National in the standings, added another decision with its 10-2 triumph over Bridger.

First National Bank rolled to its shutout win over Flower Basket behind a 16-hit barrage. Longstreet and Nelson paced the Bankers at the plate with each blasting four hits and combining for nine runs in 11 trips to the plate. Winning pitcher Mayfield added three hits and scored five runs en route to the decision.

Police broke a 2-2 deadlock in the second inning by scoring one run for the go-ahead signal. Four additional runs in the third frame gave the second place Police squad a five-run margin.

Ziegler and Grojean paced the Police attack with a double and a triple each. Ziegler went four for four at the plate while Grojean collected two hits and scored four runs in the squad's 10-hit lineup.

Blanton worked the mound for the winners, giving up three hits — two in the first inning scored the only Bridger runs.

Mets And Pirates On East Winning Trail

By KEN RAPPORPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dave Schneck was the 669th player chosen by the New York Mets in the 1968 free agent draft.

He later was one of thousands who went to war in Viet Nam in 1969.

But today he's not just another number with Yogi Berra.

"He really picked us up at a time when we needed a lift," said the New York manager after Schneck's first major league hit—a two-run homer—helped the Mets beat San Diego 3-2 Friday night.

The Mets' victory, also fashioned on Tom Seaver's five-hitter, kept them in pursuit of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East race.

The Pirates retained their three-game edge after beating the Houston Astros 5-2.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Atlanta Braves 9-8; the Cincinnati Reds turned back the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3; the San Francisco Giants walloped the Philadelphia Phillies 8-1 and the Montreal Expos blasted the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-1.

In the American League, the Oakland A's took a dobuleheader from the New York Yankees 9-3 and 1-0; the Baltimore Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox twice, 7-4 and 3-0; the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the California Angels 7-3; the Minnesota Twins nipped the Boston Red Sox 7-6; the Celveland Indians stopped the Texas Rangers 2-0 in 14 innings and the Kansas City Royals nipped the Detroit Tigers.

Nelson Briles fired a four-hitter and Gene Alley drove ina pair of runs with a double and triple to boost Pittsburgh over Houston. Briles surrended the Astro runs in the sixth on a walk and Lee May's 19th home run.

Pinch-hitter Paul Popovich capped a three-run rally in the ninth inning with a run-scoring single, leading Chicago over Atlanta in a game studded with home runs. The Cubs hit four and the Braves three, two by Mike Lum.

Pete Rose's two-run single capped a three-run second inning off Rick Wise that carried Cincinnati over St. Louis. The rally gave the Reds an early 4-0 lead and their eventual winning runs against the Cardinals.

Bobby Bonds blasted a home run, triple and two singles to lead San Francisco to an easy victory over Philadelphia. Bonds scored three runs and drove in two to make it a cinch for Juan Marichal to pick up his second straight victory and fourth of the campaign. The Giants' ace, off to the worst start of his career, has lost 10 games so far.

Baylor Moore earned his first major league victory, hurling a five-hitter, and Ron Fairly drove in four runs as Montreal came up with a club record 17 hits enroute to victory over Los Angeles.

Moore, who had lost three straight decisions this season, including one to Los Angeles, retired the first 15 Dodgers and breezed behind the Expos' highest-ever hit total. Fairly singled home two runs in the fifth, doubled in one in the seventh and singled home another in the ninth.

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring therein:

That at the next general election to be held in the state of Missouri, on Tuesday next following the first Monday in November 1972, or at a special election to be called by the governor for that purpose, there is hereby submitted to the qualified voters of this state, for adoption or rejection, the following amendment to Article IV of the constitution of the state of Missouri:

Section 1. Sections 12, 22, 28, 33, 35, 37, 38, and 40(a) of Article IV, Constitution of Missouri, are repealed and seventeen new sections adopted in lieu thereof to be known as Sections 12, 22, 28, 32(a), 33, 35, 36(a), 37, 37(a), 40(a), 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52 and 53, to read as follows:

Section 12. The executive department shall consist of all state elective and appointive officials and employees except officials and employees of the legislative and judicial departments. In addition to the governor and lieutenant governor there shall be a state auditor, secretary of state, attorney-general, a state treasurer, an office of administration, a department of agriculture, a department of conservation, a department of natural resources, a department of elementary and secondary education, a department of higher education, a department of highways, a department of transportation, a department of labor and industrial relations, a department of consumer affairs, regulation and licensing, a department of public safety, a department of revenue, a department of social services, and a department of mental health. In addition to the elected officers, there shall not be more than fourteen departments and the office of administration. The general assembly may create by law one department, in addition to those named, provided that the department shall be headed by a director or commission appointed by the governor on the advice and consent of the senate. The director or commission shall have administrative responsibility and authority for the department created by law. Unless discontinued all present or future boards, bureaus, commissions and other agencies of the state exercising administrative or executive authority shall be assigned by law or by the governor as provided by law to the office of administration or to one of the fourteen administrative departments to which their respective powers and duties are germane. The departments enumerated in this section shall be established on July 1, 1974, as successors to the departments in existence at the time of the adoption of this section; except that they may be established by law prior to that date.

Section 22. The department of revenue shall be in charge of a director of revenue appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The department shall have divisions as provided by law. The department shall collect all taxes and fees payable to the state as provided by law.

Section 28. No money shall be withdrawn from the state treasury except by warrant drawn in accordance with an appropriation made by law, nor shall any obligation for that payment of money be incurred unless the commissioner of administration certifies it for payment and certifies that the expenditure is within the purpose as directed by the general assembly of the appropriation and that there is in the appropriation an unencumbered balance sufficient to pay it. At the time of issuance each such certification shall be entered on the general accounting books as an encumbrance on the appropriation. No appropriation shall confer authority to incur an obligation after the termination of the fiscal period to which it relates, and every appropriation shall expire six months after the end of the period for which made.

Section 32(a). The department of transportation shall be administered by a transportation commission. The number, qualifications, compensation and terms of the members of the commission shall be fixed by law, and not more than one half of its members shall be of the same political party. The selection and removal of all employees shall be without regard to political affiliation. The transportation commission shall have power and authority in regard to matters pertaining to modes and systems of transportation, including airports and rapid transit, as may be provided by law.

Section 33. The transportation commission shall have such authority as may be granted by law to locate, relocate, establish, acquire, construct, maintain and control state public ground facilities for aircraft, provided funds therefor, other than state road funds, are made available.

Section 35. The department of agriculture shall be in charge of a director appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The general assembly shall provide the department of agriculture with funds adequate for administration of its functions; and shall enact such laws and provide such other appropriations as may be required to protect, foster and develop the agricultural resources of the state.

Section 36(a). The department of consumer affairs, regulation and licensing shall be in charge of a director appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The department shall administer all programs provided by law relating to the promotion of the economy of the state and its citizens and to the protection and improvement of the human rights, interests and well-being of the people of the state.

Section 37. The health and general welfare of the people are matters of primary public concern; and to secure them there shall be established a department of social services in charge of a director appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, charged with promoting improved health and other social services to the citizens of the state as provided by law, and the general assembly may grant power with respect thereto to counties, cities or other political subdivisions of the state.

Section 37(a). The department of mental health shall be in charge of a director who shall be appointed by the commission, as provided by law, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The department shall provide treatment, care, education and training for persons suffering from mental illness or retardation, shall have administrative control of the state hospitals and other institutions and centers established for these purposes and shall administer such other programs as provided by law.

Section 40(a). The control, management, restoration, conservation and regulation of the bird, fish, game, forestry and all wildlife resources of the state, including hatcheries, sanctuaries, refuges, reservations and all other property owned, acquired or used for such purposes and the acquisition and establishment thereof, and the administration of all laws pertaining thereto, shall be vested in a conservation commission consisting of four members appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, not more than two of whom shall be of the same political party. The members shall have knowledge of and interest in wildlife conservation. The members shall hold office for terms of six years beginning on the first day of July of consecutive odd years. Two of the terms shall be concurrent; one shall begin two years before and one two years after the concurrent terms. If the governor fails to fill a vacancy within thirty days, the remaining members shall fill the vacancy for the unexpired term. The members shall receive no salary or other compensation for their services as members, but shall receive their necessary traveling and other expenses incurred while actually engaged in the discharge of their official duties.

Section 47. The department of natural resources shall be in charge of a director appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The department shall administer the programs of the state as provided by law relating to environmental control and the conservation and management of natural resources.

Section 48. The department of public safety shall be in charge of a director to be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and shall administer the programs provided by law to protect and safeguard the lives and property of the people of the state.

Section 49. The department of labor and industrial relations shall be in charge of a Labor and Industrial Relations Commission consisting of three members appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. One member of the commission shall be a person who, on account of his previous vocation, employment, affiliation or interests shall be classified as a representative of employers, and one member who, on account of his previous vocation, employment, affiliation or interests shall be classified as a representative of employees, and one member, who, by reason of his previous activities and interests shall be classified as a representative of the public and who is licensed to practice law in the state of Missouri; except that not more than two members of the commission shall be of the same political party. A member of the commission shall be designated by the governor as the chairman. The Labor and Industrial Commission shall be the successor to the Industrial Commission and the terms of members shall be as provided by law for the Industrial Commission.

Section 50. The office of administration shall be in charge of a commissioner of administration. The commissioner shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate.

Section 51. The appointment of all members of administrative boards and commissions and of all department and division heads, as provided by law, shall be made by the governor. All members of administrative boards and commissions, all department and division heads and all other officials appointed by the governor shall be made only by and with advice and consent of the senate. The authority to act of any person whose appointment requires the advice and consent of the senate shall commence, if the senate is in session, upon receiving the advice and consent of the senate. If the senate is not in session, the authority to act shall commence immediately upon appointment by the governor but shall terminate if the advice and consent of the senate is not given within thirty days after the senate has convened in regular or special session. If the senate fails to give its advice and consent to any appointee, that person shall not be reappointed by the governor to the same office or position.

Section 52. There shall be established a department of higher education. A Coordinating Board for Higher Education which shall consist of nine members appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate shall be established within the department. The qualifications and terms of the members of the board shall be fixed by law, but not more than five of its members shall be of the same political party. The Coordinating Board shall succeed the Commission on Higher Education with all its powers and duties and shall have such other powers and duties as may be prescribed by law.

Adventure

THE LAST PLACE GOD MADE. By Jack Higgins. Holt, Rinehart and Winston. $5.95.

For all its natural beauty, diamonds, rubber . . . it takes boldness, recklessness or a deep faith in God to meet the challenge of the treacherous back country of Brazil.

Jack Higgins has developed the plot of this novel into a marvelous adventure story filled with breathtaking excitement.

Neil Mallory, young and fearless, chose a pilot's job in the wilds of South America over a partnership in his father's law firm in England.

Fate introduces him to Sam Hannah, a World War I ace pilot, who nourishes his ego on the glory of his past. Sam is a power figure, highly respected by people in the desolate communities in South America; behind the mask is a desperate man of little principle. The two become partners, flying mail and freight around the Rio das Mortes, or the River of Death. They are good pilots, using patched-up war relics for jobs that few men will accept. A forced landing will expose them to infestations of the jungle and Huna savages with six-foot spears.

A spicy love triangle plays an essential part in this adventure novel. Action stirs when these men escort a nun and an actress into the jungle to find a couple of nuns believed to be captives of the cruel Huna Indians.

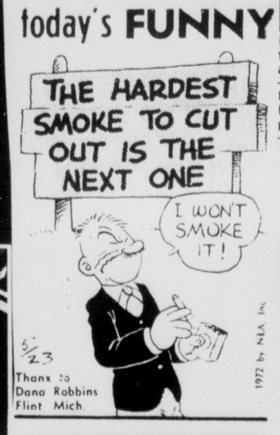

Higgins describes the loveliness of the country and the life of deprived people. Neil says maybe the Hunas, meaning enemy of all men, have reason to defend their land as they do. "They were there first."

Talk of the propelled machines of that era is a fascinating and informative part of the story. A tiny bit of humor enters near the very end, then it bursts again into excitement and fast-moving action.

Higgins has written many adventure stories. "The Violent Enemy" and other books have been discovered by the film industry. This story, too, seems to have all the necessary ingredients to make an interesting film.

Today is Saturday, July 15, the 197th day of 1972. There are 169 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1960, John Kennedy accepted the Democratic nomination for president at the party convention in Los Angeles — and in his address he used the phrase "new frontier."

On this date:

In 1606, the Dutch painter Rembrandt was born.

In 1789, King Louis XVI of France was awakened at at 2 a.m. and told his authority had collapsed with the fall of the Bastille.

In 1870, the last of the Confederate states, Georgia, was readmitted to the Union.

In 1918, in World War I, American troops attacked German positions at Chateau-Thierry in France.

In 1948, a Democratic national convention in Philadelphia nominated President Harry Truman as the party's candidate for a second term.

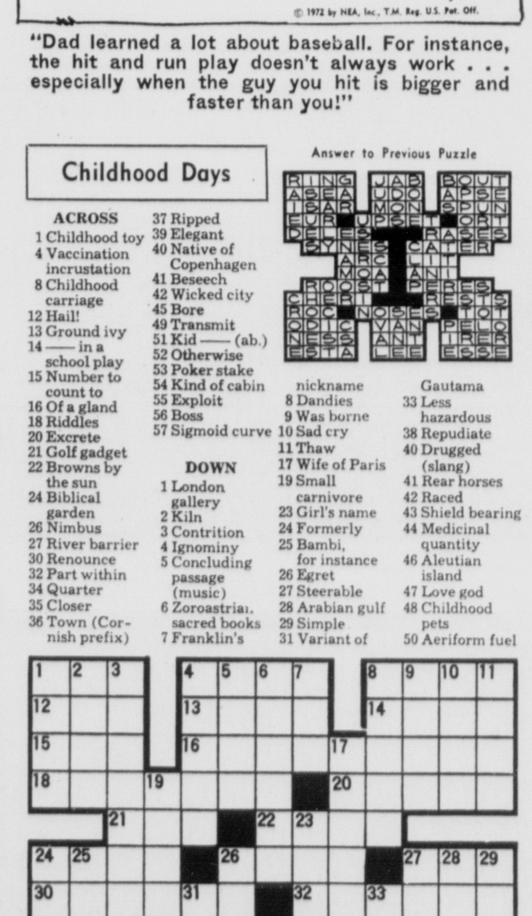

In 1958, President Dwight Eisenhower ordered 3,500 Marines to Lebanon during a Middle East crisis.

Ten years ago: The Committee for Economic Development proposed a "massive adjustment" of agriculture, including the reduction of the farm labor force by two million workers.

Five years ago: More than 30,000 workers walked out of the nation's copper refineries in a contract dispute.

One year ago: President Nixon announced he would visit Communist China to seek what he called a "normalization of relations."

Today's birthday: Former UN official Carl Van Horn is 69.

Chaffee To Vote On Park Tax Hike

CHAFFEE — A proposal to raise Chaffee's city park tax levy from 20 cents to 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation on real and personal property will appear on thy Aug. 8 ballot here.

The City Council passed an ordinance authorizing submission of the proposal. Increased funds would be used to maintain City Park, to build other park areas and to maintain the Little League program and the city swimming pool.

Mrs. Betty Uhr, park board treasurer, said the current tax levy netted only $5,100 during the past fiscal year.

Chaffee residents whose homes are equipped with sump pumps got a small financial break from the council. A provision that would have charged these residents 50 cents more on monthly sewer bills was stricken.

Raymond Rowell, superintendent of public works, conducted a survey of the north half of Chaffee to determine the number of sump pumps in use. He and Mayor Sally Wehmeyer said numerous complaints had been received about the extra charge. Councilman Joe Richbourg recommended the provision be removed from the new sewer ordinance.

City Engineer C. R. Trotter reported 70 per cent of work on the new city water line has been completed and 20 per cent of the work on the new water plant is finished.

Work on the plant has been slowed, he said, because of failure to receive a pmup and other needed parts. A contractors' bill for the past month — $15,798.68 for sewer line work and $16,397.36 for water plant and line — was submitted.

In other business, plans of T. E. Burks to construct a 12-unit apartment building on Davidson avenue were accepted and the council decided to advertise for bids on a sewage treatment plant. Bids will be opened Aug. 7.

A total of $15,681 went to 216 cases involving permanent and total disability recipients. The sum of $14,629 went to 215 general relief cases and $4,800 was allotted to 48 aid to the blind cases.

There are 105 recipients in professional nursing homes.

Deaths

LUCILLE GRAY

GALVA, Ill. — Mrs. Lucille Gray, 68, of Galva, a former Sikeston, Mo. resident, died Friday at Cottage Hospital in Galesburg, Ill.

She was born Aug. 16, 1903 in Starkdale, Mo., one of seven children of George and Emma Harpole. She attended schools in Rock Island, Ill. She married Charles L. Gray on May 20, 1939 at Davenport, Iowa. She lived in Benton, Mo., and later moved to Woodhull, Ill., and had lived five years in Galva. She was a member of Unity Baptist Church near Benton.

She is survived by her widower and two sisters, Mrs. Beatrice Burton of Clearwater, Fla., and Mrs. Martha Greathouse of Alton, Ill.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at Johnson - Gil - Schuster Chapel in Galva.

Burial will be in Galva Cemetery.

Cape C Of C Opposes Transportation Bond

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, went on record as opposing the proposed $730 million mass transit bond issue, charging it would divert approximately $255 million from state highways.

Clarence Lee Shirrell, chamber president, said the board of directors agreed with a report of the chamber's highway and transportation committee which pointed out that too much of the proposed money would be used on projects other than upgrading and expanding state highways.

A. C. (Doc) Brase, chairman of the committee, said only the larger cities in Missouri would benefit by getting airports, rapid transit and bus systems, with Kansas City and St. Louis benefiting the most.

The bond issue is expected to appear on the November general election ballot.

Brase said the bonds would not be retired until the year 2007, and by then it would have cost Missouri taxpayers $1,204,500,000 above the original $730 million.

Proponents say it would still take only a two- cent gas tax increase to fund the bond issue, Brase pointed out, the same amount as was proposed in the 1970 referendum calling for $450 million of bonds to provide a state inter- regional highway system.

"We don't see how this is possible," he said. "Someone has made a mistake."

He added it may take more than the $180 million earmarked for rapid transit systems in St. Louis and Kansas City and questioned where that additional amount would come from.

Missouri voters in 1928, 1945, 1962 and 1970 turned down similar issues that would have diverted funds from the state's highway system. The Missouri Constitution provides protection against such diversion.

As proposed, $475 million would go toward highways; $120 million for St. Louis rapid transit systems and $60 million for Kansas City rapid transit; $15 million for a St. Louis regional airport and $7.5 million for a regional airport in Kansas City; $7.5 million for other airports; $15 million for city bus systems in St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Columbia, Jefferson City and Springfield, and $30 million for county bridges.

Springfield Chamber of Commerce two months ago voted to oppose the referendum.

Missouri Tops In Placing Vets Into Health Careers

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Missouri has placed a higher percentage of veterans into health careers and health education programs than any other state in the nation, according to the national headquarters of the Military Experience Directed Into Health Careers (MEDIHC) Program.

University of Missouri Director of Intercampus Instruction, Lynn Martin, is coordinator for the Missouri MEDIHC Program. According to Alice Frazer, national MEDIHC coordinator, Dr. Martin has succeeded in placing almost nine out of every 10 veterans who have applied for positions in the health field.

The program was funded in 1971 by the Department of Defense and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. During the year, Dr. Martin has placed 222 of 253 applying veterans.

The figures released by the national MEDIHC headquarters show Oklahoma second with 80 per cent of its applicant veterans placed and California third with 67 per cent. Only six states, including Missouri, placed more than 50 per cent.

According to Dr. Martin, "The number of veterans is increasing with the winding down of the Vietnam War and they are finding it difficult to get positions in a tightening job market. At the sametime the health field desperately needs people qualified to perform many health- related services. Through MEDIHC we are able to use, rather than waste, the valuable medical training many veterans received while in the armed services."

Although MEDIHC coordinators step out of the picture once the veteran and the agency are in contact, Dr. Martin said that the jobs these men and women are getting are attractive in terms of salary, working conditions and advancement. "Those who start out in low- level positions and who prove to be dependable move up very rapidly. Also, many find opportunities to get further training while they continue to work part time."

After visiting many hospitals in Missouri, Dr. Martin said he has been made aware of just how severe the sortage of personnel to serve our health needs really is, especially in rural areas.

"MEDIHC is performing a real service to the people of Missouri by furnishing veterans to health agencies in our rural communities and in innner-city areas," he said. "These men and women return from the service with a desire to do something for humanity. Many of them state preferences on their applications for areas of the state which other people often shun."

Dr. Martin said that regardless of where they are placed, he has found without exception that veterans are received warmly by both hospital administrators and by the communities. "For one thing, they do a good job. They are not only already trained, but their experience in the service helps them cope with emergency situations."

Hospitals and health agencies have indicated that their personnel turnover has slowed down since they have started hiring veterans Few leave their jobs except to receive further training, according to Dr. Martin.

MEDIHC has not only helped veterans get jobs which pay well and are personally fulfilling, but as one veteran put it in a letter to Dr. Martin, "It has made me realize that the time I spent in the service was not wasted."

Because of the success of the Missouri program, HEW and DOD have allocated funds to expand the program and staff at the University of Missouri. "Recently we were asked to host a regional meeting of MEDIHC coordinators," says Dr. Martin, "and we have also received funds to make a film about our program to be used nation-wide to informorm veterans about the program and to encourage medical agencies to participate."

application."

The application, in Fulton County Superior Court in Atlanta, was for taking the Georgia bar exam. He passed it in June of 1964 and was sworn in as a lawyer in August of 1964.

The newspaper quoted Richard Hicks, an assistant district attorney for Fulton County, Ga., as saying "it certainly is" a felony to give false residency information to obtain a Georgia law license.

The residency requirement in the Missouri Constitution has prevented Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth from running for the Republican nomination for governor this year. Danforth says he voted in 1965 in New York State.

Bond served as assistant attorney general under Danforth before his election as auditor.

Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom Is Number One

Omaha, Nebr., July 3--MUTUAL OF OMAHA'S WILD KINGDOM, which is completing its first season as a syndicated television series, has gained the number one spot in terms of viewing audiences of syndicated shows, according to an announcement made today by Mutual officials.

Based on the analysis of ratings of the 271 syndicated shows compiled by the American Research Bureau in its latest 1972 sweep, MUTUAL OF OMAHA'S WILD KINGDOM recorded the largest number of viewers with over 27 million people.

The popular, all-family program was an NBC regular prior to the 1971-72 season when it joined the ranks of syndicated programs. The series has won four Emmy Awards and was one of only six syndicated programs to be nominated this season for the Award.

According to Mutual of Omaha, the series will begin a second season this fall as a syndicated series, eleventh on network television, with a viewing audience expected to be larger than last season. As of today, 213 markets have been cleared for the 1972-73 season, including the five NBC O&O stations. New stations in some markets, plus improved time slots, will provide a potential increase in viewing audience of nearly a million viewers.

While a majority of television stations cleared for the new season remain NBC affiliates, the show will also be carried by some CBS and ABC stations, as well as a few independents.

World-famed zoologist, Marlin Perkins, who has hosted the program since its inception, will continue in this role. MUTUAL OF OMAHA'S WILD KINGDOM will continue to emphasize ecology and wildlife conservation.

What You Want To Know

TV MAILBAG
By Steven H. Scheuer

Q. Please settle a bet between my brother and me. I say that Carroll O'Connor, who plays Archie Bunker in "All in the Family," played the part of the truck driver whose van struck down Kirk Douglas in the movie, "Lonely Are the Brave," which was on TV recently. My brother says it was another actor. Who wins?-D.F., Memphis, Tenn.

A. You win...the character actor who played the small but pivotal role of the truck driver destined to run Kirk Douglas down in the fine film drama was none other than Carroll O'Connor, the current star of "All in the Family."

Q. I think it's a pity that Doris Day and Shirley Jones have to be stuck in such series as the two they're in. These two marvelous actresses can really sing and here they are playing silly women in typical TV situations. I think they should both have musical shows. Are they happy doing what they are doing?- I.D., Fort Wayne, Ind.

A. Both stars are content and are making a lot of money. Their TV series are hits. If they starred in strictly musical variety shows, they may have flopped..but the two singing actresses haven't given up singing. Doris will probably make an appearance on a variety show or TV special sometime in the future and the same goes for Miss Jones, who, as you know, does a good job with the singing she does do on the show.

Q. I had the great fortune of seeing James Darren in "The Star-Spangled Girl" on stage this past summer, and I thought he was wonderful. What was the name of his TV series of a few years back?-K.L., Paterson, N.J.

A. James Darren co-starred with Robert Colbert in "Time Tunnel," which can still be seen in some areas via syndication.

Q. Is Lee Majors married to a young actress who appears as a regular in one of the TV series? I was told by a girl friend that this was so. - L.D.E., Greenfield, Mass.

A. Lee Majors is a foot-loose and fancy free bachelor at present.

Q. I have had a crush on Bobby Sherman since I was 14—that was four years ago—and I still dig the guy. He's marvelous in his new series, "Getting Together,"and I was very unhappy to read that it wasn't doing very well in the ratings. Come on, Bobby Sherman fans, tune in his new series so that it could turn into a great big hit.—M.C., Wichita, Kans.

Q. I read in the papers that Bobby Sherman's new series wasn't rating very high on the charts, and I think it's unfortunate. I think I know why the show wasn't a big rater. When the parents read about a show starring a teen idol like Bobby Sherman, they automatically think it's designed for only young viewers. I think if they watched it once, they'd see it was a good situation comedy for the whole family. With all the violence on TV this year, I should think there would be an audience for a good, well-written comedy show.—P.S., Feura Bush, N.Y.

A. The Bobby Sherman fans have certainly rallied to the defense of their hero. If all of the fans who have made his recordings such big sellers tune in to his new series, the show will just have to do better in the next ratings period. Time will tell.

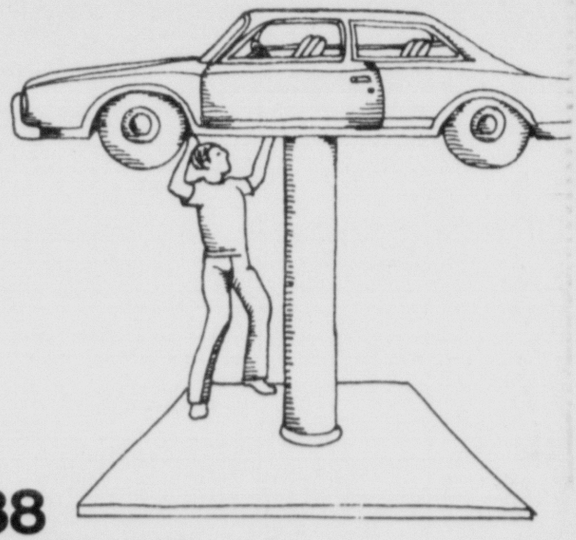

Q. I used to watch Burt Reynolds in "Dan August" every week and I miss not seeing him in anything. What is he doing besides the movies you mentioned in another column?—M.R., Bangor, Me.

A. Burt Reynolds has taken over for Johnny Carson on "The Tonight Show" a few times and he is scheduled to do so again in the near future.

Q. Whatever happened to Ava Gardner? She's so beautiful in her old films on TV. It's been some years since she made her last film, and I know she doesn't do TV or, at least, she hasn't so far.—M.L., Albany, N.Y.

A. Ava Gardner has recently been set by director John Huston to play actress Lily Langtry in a forthcoming film about Judge Roy Bean, a western figure to be played by Paul Newman.

Recipe Specialities

Pack the picnic cooler with sandwiches made from skinless frankfurters. Grind together ½ pounds franks, ½ a small onion and 1 stalk celery. Blend in ¼ cup sweet pickle juice and a few drops of Tabasco.

Or pack these crowd pleasurers: Mix together ½ cup minced skinless frankfurters (they're fully cooked right from the package), a 3-ounce package cream cheese and 2 tablespoons thawed frozen pineapple juice concentrate. (Add the rest of the concentrate. to lemonade for anew punch.

For the grill, try 6 skinless frankfurters encased in a mixture of 1 pound ground beef, 1 slightly beaten egg, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce and 3/4 teaspoon seasoned salt. Grill over hot coals about 12 minutes and serve in hot dog buns with relish and mustard. These will serve 6 people.

No barbecue season will be complete without barbecued bologna. Scored a 3-to-4 pound chunk of bologna about ¼-inch deep, as for ham. Anchor on spit and attach to grill. Baste with a mixtue of½ cup red current jelly, 2 tablespoons prepared hot mustard and ¼ teaspoon cloves. Cook about 45 minutes until well-glazed and hot. Slice to make 10 to 12 servings. (Use the leftovers for sandwiches.)

For a kabob idea, wrap skinless frankfurter chunks with partially cooked bacon and alternate on a skewer with folded bologna slices and dill pickles chunks. Turn often until browned and bacon is cooked.

For safe picnicing and camping, remember to refrigerate all sausage except for dry sausage (salami) which may be kept whole indefinitely in a cool place. Once the casing is opened, however, refrigerate dry sausage also, recommend food technologists from Union Carbide.
